Churchill Calls for Parley With Reds

THREE-NATION TALKS URGENT, SAYS LEADER

Hints Allies Will Cross English Channel In Full Force.

(By United Press)

CITADEL, Quebec—Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today that it seemed "necessary and urgent" for the Russian, American and British foreign ministers to meet for a discussion of Allied war plans.

Speaking from the historic Citadel where he and President Roosevelt recently mapped the Allied strategy, Churchill said that they would persevere in their efforts to meet Premier Josef Stalin of Russia, but meanwhile lesser representatives of the three nations should meet.

He pointed out that it would not have been suitable for Russia to be represented at the Quebec conference devoted largely to plotting the defeat of Japan, but made it clear that the western allies desired every possible liaison with the Soviets.

Even as Churchill spoke, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was reported conferring in London with Ivan Maisky, former Soviet ambassador to London; and John G. Winant, United States ambassador, evidently regarding the plans for the meeting which Churchill proposed.

Churchill started speaking about 1 p. m. from a small panelled room in the historic citadel. He returned to Quebec this morning to make the speech after six days of fishing in the Laurentian area.

Churchill paid unstinted tribute to Canada for the part this Dominion has taken in the war, declaring that it had "deeply touched the heart of the mother country."

Gets Jury Trial On Charge Of Taking 50 Cents

Hearing of a case involving Donald E. Stevens, 219 South Mulberry street, a taxi driver who is accused of embezzling 50 cents, was continued for a second time in municipal court today when the defendant was granted a jury trial.

Judge H. H. Schettler scheduled the trial for next Tuesday and instructed Paul Ritchie, municipal court clerk, to obtain a jury.

Spectators who jammed the courtroom for a second time to hear a testimony in the case were disappointed again this morning when Atty. George W. Biddle, Stevens' counsel, requested the drawing of a jury.

Stevens, who is expected to report for army induction Sept. 8, was cited Aug. 21 on a charge filed by R. N. VanDyne, proprietor of the DeLuxe Cab company. Stevens has been free under $200 bond since shortly after his arrest.

Atty. Biddle revealed today that Stevens had been offered a job by another taxi firm and a number of persons have told him they would gladly pay the 50 cents he is accused of embezzling

PICKET AGAIN

Maritime Workers Protest Pegler Column to Editor.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— National Maritime union pickets marched today in front of the mid-town office of Roy W. Howard, president and editor of the New York World - Telegram, protesting against the writings of Westbrook Pegler, syndicated columnist.

The pickets carried signs reading, "Roy Howard, you support Hitler; you pay Pegler to do Hitler's work" and "5,751 merchant seamen lost delivering the goods but Pegler sneers and smears." Pegler has criticized the union in his column.

Train Wreck Toll Climbs To 27 Dead

46 Injured When Steam Pours Into Limited That Hit Freight.

BULLETIN

WAYLAND, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad officials today blamed the wreck of its New York - Buffalo limited, on the crew of a freight locomotive "which for some reason" entered into the main line despite signals to the contrary.

(By United Press)

WAYLAND, N. Y.—A crew of 300 men worked today to clear away the wreck of the Lackawanna railroad's New York to Buffalo limited, in which 27 persons were killed and more than 46 were injured seriously enough to remain in hospitals.

Although an attempt to make up lost running time reportedly was blamed for the accident, special agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were on the scene. They assumed jurisdiction because many soldiers were aboard the train.

Nineteen of the 27 bodies were removed from the train's fifth coach. They were scalded when live steam shot through the car after the limited, speeding at an estimated 70 miles an hour, crashed into a freight engine.

A steam cylinder on the freight locomotive burst, breaking the windows on the fifth coach and spurting the steam and scalding water inside. An unidentified woman became heroine of the disaster when she wrapped her coat around her head and assisted the panic-stricken passengers to escape through the murk of the steam-filled coach.

More than 300 feet of track was torn up, but repair men expected to have the line cleared by 11 a. m. today. Passenger traffic was being rerouted over the Erie line and freight over the Lehigh railroad.

Eighteen of the dead were found in the steam-filled coach. Several others who died later were reported to have been in that car.

Doctors, aided by blood plasma flown from Rochester, N. Y., worked through the night in an effort to save the lives of the injured, many of whom were

UP 3 PER CENT

Nelson Says He's 'Pleased' at War Production.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Munitions production in July was revealed today to have increased three per cent over June.

War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson said he was "moderately pleased" with the gradual rise from the May and June "plateau," but warned against any curtailment of production.

"If our production goals are to be achieved," he said, "production step-ups must continue during the next six months the good record of production increases of the past year and a half."

Nelson described a 17 per cent increase in signal equipment output as "one of the most noteworthy achievements of the month."

PRETENSE FAILS

Man Gets $2,000 But Then FBI Gets Him.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—A 42-year-old man registered as Earl William Currey was held at Springfield, O., today on charges of obtaining $2,000 from a Chicago beauty shop operator on false pretenses.

FBI Special Agent-In-Charge Alan Belmont said the man, who will be returned to Chicago, represented himself as a brigadier general on sick leave from the U. S. army.

HILDEBRAND TO BE NEW DEPUTY

Former Mansfield Policeman Appointed By Sheriff To Succeed Freeman.

Ralph K. Hildebrand, former Mansfield police officer now a guard at the Scioto Ordnance plant at Marion, today was named a Richland county deputy sheriff by Sheriff Frank E. Robinson.

Hildebrand, who served 13 years on the city police staff, resigning seven years ago while Merle D. Unkle of Toledo was serving as police chief, was appointed to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Glenn P. Freeman.

Sheriff Robinson said Hildebrand would take over the position late this week.

The sheriff also announced the appointment of John D. Whitcomb to the position of chief deputy, post which Freeman held at the time he resigned.

In announcing the appointment of Hildebrand, the sheriff said the former Mansfield officer had been recommended by William Lauer, former Mansfield police chief, as well as Police Chief M. K. Bates.

Hildebrand can operate a motorcycle and is well acquainted with police work otherwise, the sheriff said.

Hildebrand was a patrolman in the city department until he resigned after a controversy with former Chief Unkle who later resigned and is now in Toledo, where he was stationed before coming to Mansfield.

Ringling Circus 'Plasters' City For Show Sept. 18

Those big red and yellow posters that are the delight of every circus fan appeared on Mansfield buildings and in vacant store windows today to announce the first visit of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus in the city in six years.

The big show will come to the Mansfield fairground Saturday, Sept. 18, for afternoon and evening performances, scheduling the Mansfield appearance after wartime travel restrictions prevented a long trip into the western states.

Advertised as "the Greatest Show on Earth," the circus will feature such star acts as the Loyal-Repensky family of bareback

QUESTION UP

Recreation Board Decides on Levy Proposal Tomorrow.

The Mansfield Recreational board meets Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Boy Scout headquarters to study the advisability of a tax levy to obtain funds to finance a city-wide recreational program to solve Mansfield's juvenile delinquency problem.

Floyd Dent, chairman, said the board will decide whether the levy question will be submitted for decision of Mansfield voters at the fall election.

If the board favors, the levy a committee will be appointed to study the financial requirements for a year around program, the chairman said.

Carroll, Board's Clerk 10 Years, Named Commissioner

P. S. Carroll, clerk of the Richland county board of commissioners for the past 10 years was named to the commission this afternoon to fill the vacancy caused by the death last week of Ray Hout.

Carroll, who lives at 77 West Second street, was the unanimous choice of the board of three charged with filling the vacancy, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, a member of the committee revealed. His was the first name considered, out of a field of nearly 20 applicants for the job Wolfe said, and the decision to name Carroll, a Democrat, was quickly reached. Other members of the committee were Recorder Don Orewiler and Probate Judge Stuart H. Cramer.

In accepting the appointment, Carroll said he would fill out the unexpired term of Mr. Hout, which ends in 1944, but would not be a candidate for election to succeed himself.

"We feel in view of his experience in the commissioners' office for the past 10 years that Carroll is the logical man for the job," Wolfe said, adding "we are confident he will handle his new duties capably."

Among the unsuccessful applicants for the position were two former county commissioners, two former county office-holders and two present county employes.

John Friday, Springfield township, former county commissioner defeated for nomination at the last election; C. L. Mitchell, Mansfield, former commissioner defeated in the last election; Walter Shafer, of Lexington, former deputy auditor, and Fred Zellner of Mansfield, former clerk of courts, all made application for the position.

KANSAS CITY Alf M. Landon, criticizing the national administration's food policy as one which "decided this week what it thinks it will need next week," today for a "realistic, continuous program" visualizing the place of American agriculture in the world economy:

"We need an intelligent program balancing livestock numbers with feed, encouraging rather than hampering the farmer," the 1936 Republican presidential nominee said in an address for delivery at the Kansas City Cooperative club.

"That requires one sympathetic authority instead of many agencies working at cross-purposes."

A Bit Early For Christmas? Not For Health Seals

The first hint of Christmas was in the air in Mansfield today, although summer still has three weeks to go and there may be days of 90-degree temperatures.

The 1943 Christmas health seals arrived and will be available at the city health department offices Wednesday for use on mail and packages to be sent to servicemen overseas.

Mrs. Margaret Adams, executive secretary of the Richland County Tuberculosis association, said the little penny seals that have become a part of the nation's Christmas will not go on sale for general use until after Thanksgiving. The early mailing date for overseas packages, however, made it necessary to open the sale immediately to persons who plan to start their holiday mailing next month, Mrs. Adams said.

Leaflets Call For People of Rome To Go on Silent Strike.

LONDON —(AP)— Leaflets have been distributed in Rome calling on the people to go on a 15-minute strike at 10 a. m. tomorrow, standing silently with arms crossed, the Rome radio said today.

In a later broadcast the Italian news agency declared six Italian anti-Fascist parties had denied they had anything to do with the circulars.

MOTORISTS ON SPOT AS B GAS BOOKS RUN OUT

Many Without New Coupons as Midnight Deadline on Old Stamps Sticks.

URGED TO FILL UP

Those Still Having Old Books Warned To Use Them Before They Become Invalid.

Putting hundreds of motorists "on the spot," the Richland county rationing board ran out of new B gasoline rationing books today, about 14 hours before the midnight deadline for use of the old B ration stamps.

Scores of drivers qualified for B book rations faced the prospect of being forced to get along on their basic A rations for a week or more. Some are those who already have sent in their old B books for exchange.

Scores of others who have not yet sent in their old B coupons for the new ones which become valid tomorrow had better fill up their tanks tonight before the old B coupons expire at midnight, the board warned.

The situation was created today, first because Richland ration officials were caught short in their supplies of new ration coupons with no hope of getting additional ones immediately and secondly, ration officials are standing pat on the today's deadline for using the old stamps.

C. C. Beelman said the B stamp supply was exhausted this morning. Stacks of mail containing B books to be exchanged were piled up at the ration office today.

The board sent to Cleveland yesterday for an additional supply of books, but was advised that other places too had been caught short and that Mansfield would have to wait its turn for a new supply.

Beelman was unable to state the number of books that have been exchanged thus far, but estimated that about two-thirds of the B book holders had either mailed their books in or had brought them to the office personally.

Officials were advised that today's deadline for using the old-type B coupons was still in effect. The old-type supplemental gasoline coupons will be unacceptable for gasoline after midnight tonight.

Beelman said the board hopes to have the new supply of books here by the end of the week.

SAYS NO AGAIN

Bricker Bans Special Session on Sales Tax Cut.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— For the third time, Gov. John W. Bricker said today he would not call the legislature back to consider a tax reduction program.

Returning from his western fishing trip, the governor was told there was "agitation" for reduced taxes in view of increasing state revenue.

Bricker recalled the legislature refused to go along last spring with his suggestion to eliminate the sales tax on restaurant food and prescription medicines, and added "I have no reason to believe it has changed its mind."

He said all surpluses would be kept and not spent until after the war "when a reduction program certainly ought to be worked out."

British Force Lands on Toe, Berlin Asserts

Claims Warships Support Attack Which London Observers Believe Was Raid Of Commando Type; Move Seen As Prelude To Major Operation.

(By United Press)

LONDON—The German radio reported today that about 400 British troops landed Sunday on the toe of Italy in what was described as a probable preliminary to a major invasion, but official London quarters had no comment on the report.

Berlin broadcast an official DNB news agency dispatch giving a sketchy account of the reported amphibious thrust against the Italian mainland. It admitted that "a few" of the landing force still had not been captured.

A later DNB broadcast said the landing force of 400 men had been "wiped out except for 300 who escaped into the mountains." It appeared probable that the 300 figure was a miscue for the 30 which had been mentioned.

Unofficial but competent quarters here said it would not be surprising if a small Commando-type raid had been made with a view to obtaining information on the Italian defenses of the territory across the Messina straits from Allied-held Sicily.

Berlin said the British force landed from warships southeast of Reggio Calabria. The Nazis contradicted their own claim of "immediate annihilation" with an acknowledgment that two days later some of the force still was at large.

London quarters recalled that a number of Commando-like raids had been made on various Axis-controlled coasts over many months, some of them reported only by the enemy.

German mention of communications equipment carried by the landing party suggested the possibility that the expedition might have been designed to contact Allied sympathizers in Italy and provide them with equipment for communication with the Allies. The Nazi acknowledgment that "some" of the men went into the mountains suggested that this aim might have been achieved.

Nazi military quarters were quoted by DNB as saying that the landing from warships was "completely frustrated" and predicting that the remainder of the amphibious force would be dealt with in a short time.

A broadcast dispatch of the German news agency described the landing as a "small maneuver, but added that it appeared to have been designed as the prelude to establishing a major bridgehead."

The landing was made on the extremity of the Italian mainland, southeast of Reggio Calabria, the DNB report said.

The maneuver was "immediately discovered," the agency reported, and "prompt counter-measures by German and Italian quarters resulted in the immediate annihilation of the landing force."

The claim to wiping out the landing party was contradicted by the Nazis themselves with the admission that a party estimated at "only 30" went into the interior.

The Britons carried considerable communications equipment, which they tried to set up as soon as they landed, DNB reported, leading to the assumption that the expedition was only the prelude to a major operation.

"This landing maneuver was completely frustrated by countermeasures which were immediately carried out," DNB said, quoting military sources.

DNB said the landing was made Sunday.

The DNB dispatch, broadcast from Berlin, said only 30 men escaped into the interior and appeared to have "fled into the mountains, where they do not represent any danger."

The roundup of the "last few" of the Britons was considered in

STUBBORN: 'Crushed' Danes Plague Nazis With New Strikes

By JOHN H. COLBURN

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—Harassed German occupation authorities in Denmark, having crushed a military revolt after two days of violent fighting, were faced today with a new threat as a series of general strikes against their dictatorship broke out in nine cities.

With King Christian a prisoner, most of the government members jailed or under house arrest, and scores of other prominent Danes in prison, Gen. Hermann Von Hannecken moved to tighten the German military grip over the country by rounding up all Danish army and navy officers.

Von Hannecken rushed troops to areas where strikes were reported paralyzing every type of business. The cities affected were Skagen, Jhoerning, Saeby, Aalborg, Viborg, Aarhus, Grenaa, Frederickia and Svenborg. Extraordinary efforts were taken to prevent spread of the strikes to other industrial centers.

The strikes indicated the Danes were uncowed by threats of drastic penalties, including death, under Von Hannecken's martial law decree instituted before dawn Sunday, when he stripped the government of Premier Eric Scavenius of all power.

Danish citizens living in Stockholm expressed belief that political leaders outside Denmark would form a free Danish government in London and ally it formally with the United Nations.

Free Danish leaders headed by Christmas Moeller have been functioning in London, but until now lacked authority to exercise governmental powers. The Nazi over-

DOUBLE: Japs Hit In Air At Wewak, On Land At Salamaua

(By United Press)

The Japanese appeared today to have lost a final desperate effort to save Salamaua, suffering a defeat only a mile from the coastal base, and Allied planes scored another smashing victory over the enemy's air force in New Guinea.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported that enemy counter-attacks at Kila Ridge, a mile west of Salamaua and fringing the useless airdrome near the town, had been smashed in two days of fighting. One report said 40 Japanese were killed.

Meanwhile, Allied bombers attacked the Wewak area again Sunday, destroying from 37 to 49 more enemy planes, most of them in air combat, at the scene of the Japanese disaster two weeks ago that cost the enemy more than 200 planes.

The bombers dropped 144 tons of bombs on the area while other forces attacked long stretches of the New Guinea coast between Wewak and Salamaua. Mitchels hit the Madang area with 55 tons of bombs.

Other actions in the Southern Pacific area included an attack by a Catalina flying boat off New Ireland in which a Japanese cruiser got a direct hit from a 500-pound bomb.

There was no new report on the ground situation in the Solomons, but three Saturday air attacks

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON--The other World war ended just about three months after the German high command decided it could not be won. The Germans wasted very little time in a hopeless fight.

This war is almost as old as the previous World war. It begins its fifth year this week. In three months more it will have lasted as long as the other war.

How long will Hitler's regime hold out after it realizes that the war has been lost?

Clapper

By this time it must surely be clear inside the German high command that the war has been lost.

They must know that Russia will continue to enlarge the bleeding wound that is ebbing the life blood out of the German army in the east. They know the submarine scarcely scratches Allied convoys now. They had to confess it publicly when they permitted us to mount the Sicilian offensive for which supplies and 3000 craft had to be sent through the narrow gates of the Mediterranean. They admitted then that they were powerless to stop Allied ships from running the ocean at will. In Berlin itself, the evidence of Allied air strength must be sufficient to convince the most pig-headed Nazi that the race has been lost in the skies as it has on the ocean and on the land.

Hitler seems to fear internal trouble because he has made Himmler his minister of interior, giving that thug complete police control inside Germany.

* * *

Is Hitler preparing to hold out? Possibly that explains the Himmler move. But when people want to quit, no amount of force and terror can hold them to the war.

In the last war, the collapse came behind the lines and then the Allies broke through the crust. Germany was softened by the blockade. This time air attack is softening Germany behind the lines, reducing war production, and making continuation of the war more intolerable to German civilians.

Germany might have defeated England in 1940, and won the war. Rommel might have broken through to Suez a year ago. Mussolini went over to Africa ready to ride into Cairo with the conquering troops. That would not have lost the war for us, but we might have been unable to win it. Russia would have been cut off, and we might have had to accept a stalemate.

During the last year the course of the war has been completely reversed, and it is now only a question of how long the Germans wish to endure the punishment.

* * *

Nazis may hope that they can force a separate peace with either Russia or the western Allies, but that is a lunatic's hope so far as Hitler is concerned. Stalin would have no reason to spare the Hitler regime now, and render the sacrifice of Russian men meaningless. By prolonging the war on the basis of such hopes, Hitler is only subjecting his country to further devastation and loss of life for no possible gain. He will go and his regime will go with it.

The German people will be dealt with separately. And there it is important to note the prospect that President Roosevelt holds out in his latest lend-lease report to congress.

The president says that except for the Fascist leaders, people of the Axis need not fear unconditional surrender. Until the day of unconditional surrender, we will hit harder and harder.

The most senseless slaughter and destruction of the whole war is that which the Germans are now bringing upon themselves by refusing to recognize the disaster that is so plainly advancing to their door. There are no possible gains in it for Germany.

ABSENTEEISM BLAMED FOR LAG IN COAL OUTPUT

Operators' Bulletin Charges Miners Indifferent Since Spring Strike.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — "Enormous absenteeism and indifference" on the part of miners was blamed by a publication of soft coal operators today for a serious lag in coal production since the spring strike—a lag which Interior Secretary Ickes says has reduced output below the year's estimated needs.

"It seems," said a bulletin of the National Coal association, distributed to its operator members, "that the slogan 'No Contract-No Sweat' is in full operation in some sections."

The same bulletin also took the government to task for its part in the coal shortage problem, saying:

"In order to be fair about it, too, the record should also show that the government itself since last spring has not fully contributed to the successful operation of the coal mines of this country. Threats of shortages and rationing, plus implication that the government is going to do this, have not helped the situation at all.

"A solution to the manpower problem with enforcible directives has not been forthcoming. And the labor situation grows steadily worse. All this, with a little more of this panic-crying out of Washington, and we may safely look for serious difficulty in getting sufficient coal to take care of the nation, whereas the government spokesmen might do more good by being less vocal, and if the miners go to work there will be no difficulties."

The NCA bulletin's view of the miners' state of mind since they failed to win a general wage increase coincided partly with the statement of Secretary Ickes in a national magazine this week that the miners are not working "at 100 per cent efficiency because of the bitterness growing out of the absence of a work contract."

John D. Battle, executive secretary of the National Coal association, when asked about the bulletin, said he was "not making an attack upon the union." It should be noted, he added, that the reference was only to "some" of the mine workers.

Ickes yesterday estimated bituminous production for the week ended Aug. 21 at 11,929,000 tons compared with 12,030,000 tons the previous week.

FARM PRICES HIGHEST SINCE SEPTEMBER '20

Agriculture Department Check Shows Crack in 'Hold-Line' Effort of Government.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—An agriculture department survey revealed today that the index of prices received by farmers for their products has reached the highest point since September, 1920, and that the effort to "hold-the-line" on food prices has not been completely successful.

Sharp increases between July 15 and August 15 in prices for dairy products, grains, chickens, eggs, cotton and cottonseed raised the general level of farm product prices five points, more than offsetting the decline in the preceding month. It was 30 points higher than a year ago.

At the same time prices paid by farmers for commodities, interest and taxes failed to advance—the first time since August, 1942. The prices paid index for mid-August was 169 per cent of the 1910-14 average—16 points higher than the August, 1942, level.

The survey also revealed that:

1. The general supply situation for farm products is "slightly less favorable" than a month ago because of the decline in egg and milk output, but "still looks far better than average."

2. Domestic demand for farm products continues strong. Increased average weekly earnings per worker more than offsets a slight decline in employment, and non-agricultural income payments are now at record levels.

Fruit and truck crops were the only groups which showed price declines during the month ending August 15, with truck crops down seven points and fruit down 26 points.

Meat animal prices averaged the same as on July 15. Chicken and egg prices jumped 10 points; cotton and cottonseed were up four points; dairy products, up three points; grain prices, up one point.

Compared with a year ago, however, fruit prices are up 78 points; truck crops, 52; grain, 40; chickens and eggs, 37; dairy products, 30; cotton and cottonseed, 16; and meat animals, six.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—I am not shilling for the Ladies Home Journal because I am strictly newspaper except a couple of times a year when I break out with a message to humanity on slick paper, but if you want to see some fun, dip your bill into the LHJ for October. Graeme Lorimer fixed up a match between James Carey, the secretary-treasurer of the CIO and me which was to have been the main event but the copy didn't fit a certain page so they took it off the top of the bill and used it for a chaser. It was just as well, too, because Carey led with his chin and they have still got him on the table in his dressing-room and Phil Murray is pouring cold water down his trunks and icing the back of his neck and yelling for a doctor. It was just no contest.

Pegler

But that isn't what's on my mind. What I want to discuss with you is the cold, consummate gall and conceit of these magazine people. Do they think they're good? Do you know what Lorimer wrote my manager?

Well, after explaining why they had to take the debate out of the feature position and stuff it in the chinks between the goiters and electric bells, as we say in our business, Lorimer wrote: "O course, from our point of view, an author should consider himself lucky to be in the Ladies Home Journal at all, and any position is good position."

And he isn't kidding either. Most of these magazine mugs actually do believe they are doing you a great honor to publish your copy and they are almost all strictly sweat-shop in their methods and want more work and obedience for their dough than a prison contractor. A friend of mine who is a swell novelist with a big name made a deal to deliver a novel for an agreed price, spent more than a year on the job and had to write it three times and finally got it back because the editor had cooled out on the idea.

By then it was so badly mauled that even the author didn't know what it was all about and all the time and work had been thrown away on a strictly speculative proposition. One time I made a deal to do a magazine piece about lotteries, a subject on which I have a lot of information and a very strong opinion, and when I turned it in the editor tossed it back and wanted me to reverse myself and argue in favor of lotteries. They think their money can buy not only your experience, work, time, ability and reputation but your principles, as well. There I had a firm order and delivered the piece as agreed and discovered that I was just gambling. He risked nothing.

Lorimer probably gets his ideas from his old man who used to run the Saturday Evening Post. Old George was so finicking and arbitrary that he even tried to regulate the private lives of his stable of writers to the extent that they were supposed to avoid personal scandal under penalty of banishment. Some years ago a dame got mixed up with another woman's husband and went all to pieces because she was afraid it would ruin her with old man Lorimer who had been buying a lot of her stuff.

They get that way because they do pay pretty well for the pieces that happen to suit their precious and fastidious fancy and thousands of writers all over the country constantly shooting stuff at them on speculation. This relieves them of the necessity to make binding commitments even to the regular contributors and the result is they have to be buttered and yessed and cultivated and, after a few years of this, get to thinking this means that they are wonder-men when the fact is that their magazines are written no better than newspapers and, generally speaking, aren't edited nearly as well.

The New Yorker, for example, pays peanuts and that Ross (the editor) will jerk your copy every which way and throw it back and back for redoing according to his peculiar personal tastes and by the time you get it across and get your modest check, you haven't even got good day wages for your time. He kids himself that the reason he can't get good writers to do profiles and where-are-they-nows for him is that so many of them have gone to war when the truth is just that they like to eat.

Just got a call from Carey's dressing room. He is still out cold and hasn't even twitched. I guess I didn't know my strength. I wonder if they could hold me for manslaughter.

ILL 2 WEEKS

Mrs. Charles Feigenbaum, 33, Taken By Death.

Ill for the past two weeks, Mrs. Charles E. Feigenbaum, 33, of 104 Glessner avenue, died at General hospital yesterday afternoon.

Born in North Liberty, O., April 9, 1910, she has lived in Mansfield for the past nine years. She was a member of the auxiliary of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Aerie 336, and a member of St. Peter's Catholic church.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter Virginia; a son Charles Franklin; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Arnold of North Liberty; and two sisters, Mrs. Laurence Burge and Mrs. Robert Kirkpatrick, both of Mansfield.

The body was removed to the Geiger funeral home to remain until funeral services are conducted at 9:30 a. m. Thursday at St. Peter's Catholic church with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

BRICKER SAYS IT WAS 'JOKE'

Denies He Put Himself In Running For Presidency at Indian Ceremony.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker, home from a week's vacation in the Black Hills, denied today that a "jovial remark" made at a social gathering in Rapid City, S. D., Saturday constituted a declaration of candidacy for the presidency.

Commenting on a statement he made upon his initiation into the Wahoo Indian tribe, Bricker said it had no political significance and added, "If I intended to make such an announcement, I would not do it that way."

The governor was given an Indian name meaning: "Horse that wants to run," and was quoted as saying, "I know it's not so much that the horse wants to run, but it's most important whether he's given the chance to run."

Bricker said his response to his initiation into the "Singing Tribe of Wahoo," a Black Hills, S. D., publicity organization, was designed to fit into the "jovial spirit" of the occasion.

Former Gov. Ralph L. Carr of Colorado, one of the several prominent Republicans who conferred with the Ohio governor during his stay at Sundance, Wyo., said in Denver last night he interpreted the Bricker remark as "an indication of his desire to obtain the Republican presidential nomination in 1944." He declared other visitors at the Sundance ranch shared his view.

Up and Down THE STREET

Richard Gaff, 138 Poplar street, a News-Journal carrier, met with misfortune last week-end. Somewhere in the vicinity of Poplar street and Glessner avenue he lost $14 worth of ten-cent war stamps he planned to deliver to customers on his paper route. Still keeping up the search he hopes to locate the stamps soon and present them to the persons who ordered them.

Aches and pains and bruises were what the Richland county Minute Men brought back from a day of "guerilla warfare" on the Ashland Rifle Range Sunday. The home front defenders divided into two guerilla bands and stormed over a high hill to attack a cabin held by enemy troops. Captain Harvey Fleck and Lieut. C. A. Hassinger led the two guerilla bands. Hunters in peace time, these 40 Minute Men are training for home defense. The group also received marksmanship instruction during the day's workout.

Fifteen Boy Scouts, ages 13-15, are picking potatoes on the Lockhart farm, west of Bellville, today under the farm labor program undertaken by the scouts this summer. These youths represent troops 8 and 20, under the direction of Charles I. Kimmel. They will harvest the crop from 180 acres on the Lockhart farm. Previously local Scouts have helped farmers in this vicinity with apple picking, wheat shocking and threshing. Scouts will continue to help farmers through the fall.

EAST DRIVERS BACK ON HONOR

OPA Lifts Atlantic Coast Ban on Pleasure Driving But Urges 'Don't Do It.'

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Gasoline rationing resumed its old familiar pattern today as the OPA lifted the ban on east coast pleasure driving effective Wednesday but placed motorists "on their honor" not to use gas for non-essential driving.

The "honor system," tried after removal of the first pleasure driving ban early this year, proved ineffective at that time.

This latest action on the gasoline front apparently was made against the wishes of Petroleum Administrator Ickes who has been reluctant to lift the ban on pleasure driving due to low gasoline stocks.

Because Ickes controls allocation of gasoline for civilian use, it is believed the administrator may refuse to grant east coast drivers any increase in their gas allotments—at least until late this fall or during the winter.

Meanwhile, in removing the ban, OPA told the public that "there is no increase in the supply of gasoline available for civilians," and in effect advised them to let their conscience by their guide as to what constitutes non-essential driving.

ASKS BIG STICK

May Urges Compulsory Military Training After War.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the house military committee called for compulsory military training in peacetime today with the assertion that Uncle Sam should "carry a big stick all the time just in case any of the other big stick boys get ideas."

The Kentuckian said he would seek legislation to require every able-bodied male between 17 and 21 to take a full year of training, followed up by periodic one-month refresher courses.

Under this program, he said, a well-trained and competent reserve force of approximately 10,000,000 young men could be built up in from 10 to 15 years.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Comes a happy note today from AC Pvt. Howard Herrick, star of last spring's Mansfield high school track team, who is about to leave Gulfport Field, Miss.

Dear Rex: How's everything back in good old Mansfield? I'd give anything to be back there for a few days, but there is a war going on.

The Army Air Corps is tops with me. This basic training really "keeps you on the ball," and in condition. I finished my basic training this week and will be shipped to college pre-flight any day now, but I don't know for sure where it will be.

* * *

Mississippi might be O. K. for the rebels, but as for the Yankees, they don't think much of it. The climate is very far from pleasant, the temperature sometimes reaches 115 degrees, and that isn't cool—especially when you are out in it all day.

What kind of a football team will we have this fall? I hear many members are going in the service.

Well, Rex, I guess I had better close for this time. We go on the field in five minutes. Write soon,

HOWARD.

* * *

It should be a pretty fair football team, Howard. The boys start practice tomorrow for what is widely recognized as one of the toughest schedules in the state.

* * *

Howard Herrick's track success last spring when he set a new record for point scoring by a Tyger trackman, provides the best possible argument for high school athletes undecided about returning to school this fall because of expectation of an early service call.

Enlisting early in the spring, Herrick was ready to quit school and await his call to service.

"You'll want to be in top shape when you go in the air corps," Track Coach Harry Mehock told him. "The best thing you can do is stay in school and keep in training with the track team. Maybe you'll get in a few meets, and maybe you won't, but you'll be in condition when you go to the army."

* * *

Herrick wasn't called until graduation, and in the meantime he had become the mainstay of a district championship team that won the title by the largest margin in the history of the meet.

He was a consistent winner in the 100 and 440 as well as anchor man on a championship mile relay team.

* * *

And the track team properly rewarded him by electing him honorary captain.

Mansfield southpaw hurler Stan Partenheimer, who went from Wooster college to the Louisville Colonels to Fort Hayes at Columbus this summer has been having a great season with the army boys who are in the play-off with Model Dairy for the city baseball championship.

Partenheimer pitched the soldiers to a 4-2 victory in the opening tilt of the three-game series Sunday, fanning 12, allowing six hits, and having a perfect day at bat with two hits and a walk.

Stan has a record of 11 victories and one defeat, which is top-notch twirling for a team that changes every week at the army induction center.

Yankees Pick Up Steam

Cardinals Bogging Down On Home Stretch Dash.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A MONTH ago the St. Louis Cardinals were being talked of as probable favorites in the World Series, but if the annual classic were opening now the New York Yankees almost certainly would be odds-on choices.

They probably will be when the series opens in October, too.

* * *

The Yankees have been picking up momentum on the home stretch while the Cardinals have been slowing down. The difference between them was shown again yesterday when the Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 3-1 while St. Louis split a doubleheader with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the only games played in the major leagues.

* * *

The Pirates won the opener, 4-3, but the Cardinals came back with an 8-3 triumph.

At New York Rookie Charley Wensloff pitched four-hit ball and Roy (Stormy) Weatherly punched the winning ticket with a two-run homer, his third in two days.

This gave the Yanks their 13th consecutive series and a record of having won 42 out of 59 games since the streak started on July 5.

They now have plenty of power and good fielding along with the best pitching in the major leagues with a staff led by Spud Chandler, Ernie Bonham and Wensloff. Chandler has won 17 games, and Bonham and Wensloff each 12.

* * *

The Cardinals have their spectacular speed and sharp hitting, but their fielding has faltered and their pitching has become uncertain.

* * *

In losing four of their last six games they have made 11 errors, five yesterday and at least one in every contest.

They made 11 hits in the 10-inning first game with the Pirates and 13 in the nightcap, but Rookie Alpha Brazle, who had not been beaten in any of his previous National League starts, gave Pittsburgh a dozen blows in the opener and his teammates made three critical errors.

Harry Brecheen held the Buccaneers to eight safeties in the second game and the Redbirds wrapped up the decision with a five-run flurry in the third inning.

Tygers Open Ticket Sale

Price of Canton Game Reduced This Season.

Season ticket sale for Mansfield high school's home football games will open Thursday, with the ducats priced at $3.50 for the five games, George Sherman, ticket manager, announced today.

* * *

Single game admission this fall will be 75 cents for each game, Sherman said, which is the usual price with the exception of a 25 cent cut in the Canton McKinley tickets which have been one dollar in the past.

* * *

In other years Canton and Massillon fans have followed their teams in such large numbers that tickets for these games have been quickly taken and were hard to get as the game drew near. Under war time travel restrictions Canton is not expected to send a crowd this fall, and the price has been reduced in order to fill the stands with Mansfield fans.

Games on the Mansfield home schedule are: Oct. 2—Cleveland Benedictine; Oct. 8—Defiance; Oct. 15—Springfield; Nov. 5—Toledo Waite; Nov. 12—Canton McKinley. There is some talk of moving the McKinley game up to Nov. 11, Armistice day, but nothing definite has been done yet.

Tickets may be obtained Thursday at the high school, and Tawse's Pharmacy. Also selling tickets will be H. W. Arlin, president of the school board, W. L. Miller, superintendent, and Coaches Paul Snyder and Vern Hoffman.

Pittsburgh Jackie Beats Constantino

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(U.P.)—Pittsburgh Jackie Wilson was in line for a shot at Phil Terranova's National Boxing association featherweight crown today after taking an easy decision over Lulu Costantino of New York in 10 fast rounds at Griffith stadium here last night.

The veteran Pittsburgh Negro led Costantino all the way, keeping him continually off balance with a hard left jab.

MARY WALL BREAKS PAR IN QUALIFIER

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.—(INS)—Shooting a one under women's par in the qualifying round of the 1943 Broadmoor women's golf championship, Mary Agnes Wall of Menominee, Mich., today ranked a strong favorite as match play got underway.

Her nearest competition in the round was Mrs. Murray Gose, Colorado Springs, defending women's Broadmoor champion, who shot an 81.

Nix On Passing

You might be hearing plenty about this young fellow this fall for he's being boomed as one of the pro league stars-to-be. He is Emery Nix, Texas Christian university's ace halfback the last two years, who now is playing with the New York Giants of the pro league.

Tribe Loses To Camp Grant

Get Two Days Rest Before Meeting Sox.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Cleveland's third place Indians are back on the home reservation today, with two days of rest ahead before starting a stretch drive for the American League's second money.

Yesterday the Redskins lost an army camp exhibition at Camp Grant, Ill., 8-4, when Manager Lou Boudreau nominated himself for pitching duties to save his regular flingers, and sent Pitcher Vernon Kennedy to shortstop.

The boy boss gave up three hits and four runs in the first inning, and Ray Poat finished, yielding seven more blows. Kennedy errored twice in the infield. The Tribe collected seven hits one of them a two-run homer by Jimmy Grant in the eighth.

Chicago's White Sox, beaten 14 times in 19 games with the Indians this year, invade Municipal Stadium Thursday night to open the final 1943 meeting of the two teams.

OPEN SERIES

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs tangle under the lights at Crosley Field tonight to open a three-game series between the two teams.

Bucky Walters, who found the going rough early in the season but who lately has returned to winning form, will be on the mound for the Reds. Paul Derringer, a former Redleg, is Cub Manager Jimmy Wilson's choice.

With the first place St. Louis Cardinals out of reach for all teams in the loop except the Reds, the only thing left for the others to shoot at is the second place money. The Reds are holding the second-place spot four games ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates and four-and-half up on the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Springfielders Drop First Tilt

MILES CITY, Mont.—(AP)—Unable to complete their game last night because of weather, the New Orleans Jax and the Richfields of Minneapolis will meet at 2.30 p. m. (MWT) today in the American Legion Junior Baseball World Series.

Winner of the game will play the Springfield, O., club tonight to decide the national championship.

The game last night was called at the end of the fourth. Neither team had scored.

* * *

In yesterday afternoon's contest, the Richfields beat Springfield 9-5 in the double-elimination tournament.

* * *

Fireballer Bob Danielson, on the mound for Minneapolis, held Springfield to 10 scattered hits, and himself went on the offensive in the eighth with a homerun that scored a mate ahead.

Bob Davis and Eugene Burg of Springfield were nicked for 13 hits by the Richfields.

All-Star Manager Argued

Case Presented For McCarthy Selection.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The big question in cracker-barrel baseball today is: Will Bucky Harris or Joe McCarthy guide the All-Star team in Africa this autumn?

Baseball's gossips insist that Harris, former manager of the Senators, Tigers and Phillies, will be the man chosen as pilot because he is well liked. Moreover, he is independently wealthy. And the baseball owners do not care to have their pilots traipsing dangerously about the Mediterranean area when they should be polishing their squads for next season's play.

* * *

Those favoring McCarthy claim he is the most successful manager in major league history, having won eight pennant titles since he came up to the majors. This includes his National league flag with the Cubs in 1929—he lost in that World series to the Athletics— and his seven subsequent pennants in the American division as manager of the Yankees.

* * *

During most of McCarthy's tenure, his critics charge, he was helped greatly by President Ed Barrow and George Weiss, head of the Yankee farm system. Those assists could have been true until this season. Then it was that McCarthy proved himself the master-manager, despite anything that might happen to his assistants.

On May 27 the Yanks had suffered their fifth straight defeat, putting them in third place, behind Washington and Cleveland. On July 3, midway in the season, the Yanks were in first place, a half-game ahead of Washington. And at that time the last-place Philadelphia Athletics were only 6½ games behind.

* * *

Many of the "experts" were shouting that the Yankees had cracked up. And were offering condolences. But he wasn't interested. Again he wrapped his slipping squad into a winning unit, as he had done so many times before.

* * *

Despite many setbacks, he welded guys like Etten, Lindell, Johnson, and Sturnweiss into a clicking machine. McCarthy's experiments with this machine began to pay off about mid-season—thanks to the return of suspended Crosetti at short and the lift in the club's batting average.

Someone had the idea that it would be a natural hookup for pictures—Bear Mountain and the Giants' exhibition against those big bad Chicago Bears at Buffalo Sunday. Get it? . . . Anyway, Steven and Tuffy Leemans, who's spherical Steve's only assistant this season, consented to pose with a couple of roly-poly black bear cubs. . . . "They're cute little fellas," Owen admitted as he came out with his not inconsiderable area of skin undamaged . . . and he and Tuffy agreed the Giants will be lucky to do as well Sunday.

* * *

Concensus around the two football camps is that the Bears and the Green Bay Packers, as usual, will be the teams to beat in the National league this season and that Washington's Redskins won't be so troublesome unless Sammy Baugh's pitching form improves over his All-Star game showing. . . . "We have a better team than last year and the others will be coming back to us," commented Leemans. . . . "The Bears only have two guards — yeah, Danny Fortmann and George Musso—they've got Bronk Nagurski back; he'll be playing tackle and he'll probably play in his own territory. . . . And they still have Bulldog Turner at Center." . . . Tuffy seemed to be having a rather hard time keeping an optimistic grin on his face—especially when he compared Turner to the Giants' collection of rookie centers.

* * *

Ward Cuff, in his seventh pro season still one of the Giants' best backs, brought his wife and two small girls—about three or four years old—to camp with him. . . . After watching them in action for a while Owen decided that, if worst came to worst, he could put them in against the Bears and it wouldn't take long to wear down that Chicago line.

* * *

The Dodgers, who started late and without very bright prospects, got quite a lift yesterday when Ben Kish and George Cafego, a couple of better than average veteran backs, reported unexpectedly. . . . Both have been discharged from the army for physical disabilities that won't prevent their playing pro football. . . . Up to that time Bruiser Kinard had been virtually the only veteran in camp. . . . Pete Cawthon, new Dodger coach, probably is the loudest tutor in the league. He never seems to stop for breath as he works his players—and by work Pete means just that. . . . Hugh (Shorty) Ray, who drew up the pro rules, was on hand for his annual interpretation lecture and talked at some length on the virtues of running plays quickly . . . Shorty once timed the Bears at an average of 27½ seconds a play. The next week they brought it down to 22½ seconds.

Milwaukee Drops Fourth Straight

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee dropped its fourth straight game last night when Minneapolis grabbed a 5-3 decision to shave the Brewers' lead in the American Association to a mere half-game over Indianapolis.

The Indians will have a chance to take over the top if they can beat Toledo twice in a doubleheader today. Milwaukee has a single game at Minneapolis.

Frank Danneker's two-run homer in the seventh inning off Relief Pitcher Prince Oana broke a 3-3 stalemate and provided the winning margin for the Kels last night.

The Milwaukee - Minneapolis game was the only Association contest scheduled yesterday.

Appling Takes Batting Control

NEW YORK—(AP)—After several weeks of battling Dick Wakefield of Detroit for the American League battling lead, Luke Appling of the Chicago White Sox has taken control with a comfortable margin again.

The Tiger rookie was on top a week ago with a .330 average, but since then has dropped five points while the veteran shortstop of the White Sox has spurted upward from .329 to .337.

This pair apparently has the hitting race in the junior circuit strictly between themselves because not another regular in the entire league is above .300 level.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals continued to set an unapproachable pace in the National League with a .353 average.

67 Answer Call For Ohio State Football

Small Kids In 17-Year-Old Class Face Tough Schedule In Big Ten

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A lightweight 67-man Ohio State football squad headed today into 25 days of hard work preparing for the opening game against the powerful Iowa Seahawks and Head Coach Paul E. Brown declared "I don't know about the quality, but we really have quantity."

"Most of the kids are small, maybe too small for Big Ten football, but we'll find that out pretty quick," the mentor of last year's Big Ten and national championship team added.

* * *

Most of the candidates are 17 or 18-year-old freshmen—some eligible for induction into the armed forces—and only six are veterans of last year's squad.

* * *

The largest number of candidates to report to Coach Brown since he came to the university two years ago, it is the smallest squad physically in many years.

Examinations, uniform fitting and the like were attended to yesterday. Field work starts tomorrow for the Sept. 25 date with the Seahawks here.

Four of the returning veterans are deferred in the draft, two because of punctured eardrums, one because of varicose veins and one because of asthma. Another is married and has a child.

* * *

Bill Willis, 205-pound tackle from Columbus East, was the only regular from last year's championship team to report yesterday.

* * *

The only other candidates who played with the Bucks a year ago were Gordon Appleby, second string center from Massillon; Cecil Souders, reserve end; Jack Dugger, third string tackle; Paul Selby, sub quarterback, and Bill Hackett, guard, who saw only limited service because of injuries. Bobby Campbell, right halfback who saw spring practice, also attended the initial session. He is a member of the naval reserve.

The nine-game schedule includes encounters with the Seahawks, Missouri, Great Lakes, Purdue, Northwestern, Indiana, Pittsburgh, Illinois and Michigan.

CANDIDATES LISTED

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Candidates who reported yesterday for the 1943 Ohio State University football squad included:

Bill Hackett, London, G; Gordon Appleby, Massillon, C; Cy Souders, Bucyrus, E; Jim Campbell, Huron, E; Jack Dugger, Canton, T; Lawrence Ulrey, Westerville, G; Russell Thomas, Charleston, W. Va.; T; Paul Davis, Middletown, FB; Earl Brendlinger, Sebring, T.

* * *

Ernie Parks, Canton, HB; Louis Pope, Canton, G; Joe Stora, Shadyside, HB; George Neff, Bellaire, G; Jack Roberts, Springfield, FB; Ray Stackhouse, Dayton, T.

* * *

Bernard Plumley, Chesapeake, HB; Russell Plumley, Chesapeake, HB; Paul Maltinsky, Wheeling, W. Va., G; Ronny Hefflinger, Napoleon, G; Dominic Giovannazzo, Elyria, G; Robert Borkowski, Dayton, HB; Wid Miller, Wapakoneta, G.

Stewards Add To Loop Lead

Beat Second Placers For 4-Point Margin.

Stewards just about sewed up the championship in the Moose golf league last evening with a 3-1 victory over second-place Managers at Coolridge, boosting their margin in four points with two weeks to go.

* * *

Two of the matches between the pace setters went extra holes, Everett Crosky beating Jim Anderson on the 10th, and lone point for Managers by taking Ray Kindinger with a par on 10.

* * *

Dick Gaubatz took medal honors for the evening with a 36, while Joe Mayer, Ray Malaska and Joe Kasper had 37, Pete Linster 38, and Frank Jocha, Phil Schwaner and Pete Marcoff 39.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

CHAPTER IX

Bob Lee pieced together the stories he heard and gathered that the train had not attained full speed at Perry before it was slowed down for a flag stop.

"Tank station where we stop when flagged," a brakeman had explained. "Likely someone wants to get on."

As the train came to a stop, a salvo of shots broke through the darkness. Masked men herded the passengers into one car, covered the engineer and train crew and demanded a shipment of gold.

Pat Foley, train messenger, an old timer proud of his record, reached for a gun. A bullet drilled his head. He slid to the floor.

The big bandit who had shot him laughed. "You can't teach a fool anything," he said. "Get busy, boys."

They found keys in a pocket of the messenger's trousers, opened the safe and took from it sacks of gold and packages of greenbacks. The leader fired two shots to warn his men to leave.

In bravado the thief on the engine made a threat; his revolver covering the engineer, jerked downward.

"By golly, I've a mind to leave a slug in your belly as a souvenir," he jeered.

The engineer dove out of the opposite side of the cab to escape. A bullet caught him as he leaped. He crumbled up on the edge of the track.

The bandits kept firing as they retreated to the clump of cottonwoods back of the tank. An ineffective shot or two came from the train. Presently the robbers pounded up a draw and vanished into the wilderness.

They left behind them confusion, hysteria, and shaken nerves. Pat Foley was dead, the engineer seriously wounded. Passengers milled around in excitement.

"We'll get on to Mulhall," the conductor announced, "and wire ahead from there to Guthrie to have a doctor ready to look after Jim."

* * *

When Bob Lee reached the tank the posse from Perry had just arrived. The leader, Sheriff Sunderland, a tanned tough Westerner in a white sombrero and cowboy boots, had ridden the range for years. He quartered over the ground and cut sign left by the outlaws. From the hoof prints he guessed there were six or eight of the bandits. In the draw where the road agents had disappeared he picked up a bit of cotton cloth with slits. Bob joined him.

"One of their masks," Sunderland said.

Bob did not answer. He drew from his pocket a half yard of cloth and handed it to the officer. Sunderland compared the two pieces. On both was the same sprigged rosebud pattern. His steely eyes probed into those of the young man.

"Who are you? Where did you get this?" he asked sharply.

"Bob Lee. I got it at Boss & Murphy's at Guthrie."

"You throwing down on yore pals? Is that it?"

"It's a long story, sheriff, but I reckon I can give you the gist of it in two-three minutes," Bob answered.

"Shoot!" snapped Sunderland.

Bob described his adventures with the Hickory outfit.

The sheriff's eyes had not lifted from Lee during the explanation. "You're asking me to believe you were following those thieves to get something on them that might save yore friend? What kind of a fool do you take me for? Why would you buy a piece of this goods? How could you tell they meant to make masks out of it?"

"I didn't know that," Bob replied. "I couldn't figure what they wanted with the stuff. That's why I bought a piece. When they let me live at Tecumseh I knew they were up to some deviltry."

"Yore story is full of holes," the sheriff said. There was a chance it might be true. He had heard of the Hightower case, "I'm going to hold you while I investigate this fairy tale. I'll get a couple of wires off tonight."

"If I'm mixed up with that gang, why should I come to you?" Bob asked.

"I couldn't say. Maybe to throw me off the trails by claiming you knew where they were heading."

"Am I a prisoner then?" Bob asked.

"You're going to stay with us, but you're not under arrest." Sunderland called to one of his posse, a small weather-beaten oldster who had been in the country since the Kiowas and Comanches were raiding. "Sid, keep an eye on this fellow. Says his name is Bob Lee Maybe he is on the level. He knows a hell of a lot about this hold-up. Figured it was going to be pulled."

"I didn't say that," Bob interrupted.

"If he makes a break to get away, stop him."

"I'm not under arrest, but you are, to plug me into a rag doll if the notion takes you," Bob spoke with sarcasm.

Bob was relieved of his revolver. Ten minutes later he was riding beside Sid along the trail left by the bandits.

* * *

Rain came before night. There was lightning in the sky. Lee got his slicker out and huddled under it. They were in for a long heavy soaker. The tracks of the horses they were following disappeared.

The sheriff stopped for a consultation. "No use ram-stamming ahead. It looks to me as if these birds were making for the Kansas line near Caldwell. We'll stop at the C-Bar-C tonight?"

Lee offered no objection.

"They are not going to Kansas, sheriff. Before it winked out, their trail swung south. They were riding this way to fool us. I know the Hickorys. Now the trail has started and they don't have to worry about being tracked they are pointing back for the Seminole country. The way to get them is to cut back fast to the Canadian, somewhere near the White Chimneys. Grab them when they cross. If we keep going all night, we'll get there before they do."

The sheriff turned a sarcastic eye on Bob. "That's right. We might get there a hell of a long while before they did. I thought it might be about time for you to crash through with advice, Mr. Lee. But I don't need it. The trail wasn't turning south, only swinging around a high rocky bluff."

"You're going to muddle around and lose them," Bob told him bluntly. "And you've got them right in yore fist if you'll cover the crossings of the Canadian. If you won't go yoreself, get to a telegraph office tonight and wire the Creek and Choctaw police to be on the lookout for them. Probably there is a deputy U. S. marshal at Krebs or McAlester. He'll get busy."

"Real anxious to catch them, aren't you?" Sunderland said with jeering irony. He was coming to the opinion that his prisoner was a capper for the outlaws, sent expressly to draw a herring across the trail. "I'll bet you know there isn't any place to send a telegram nearer than Perry, a dozen miles behind us. I'll play my own hunch. I'm not turning back."

They rode through the rain into the hills. Darkness fell as they still plodded up draws and over cowbacked rises. At least they saw below them the lights of a ranch house.

"I certainly hope it doesn't take them long to knock up a meal and hot coffee for us," one of the possee grumbled. "I'm most froze."

"Don Collins will take care of that," Sid comforted. "He's one of yore old-time cowmen, and he'll fix us up fine."

Presently the men were steaming out in front of a large open fireplace. The fragrant smell of coffee came from the adjoining kitchen and the sound of sizzling steaks. Though Bob was worried about the escape of the Hickorys but he was hungry enough to enjoy the good supper.

* * *

After his third cup of coffee, he grinned at the officer. "No use for me to worry," he said. "I did my darndest to get you to see my way. Since you didn't, I'll not squawk. Soon as you can look me up you'll find I'm all right. I will say we are a lot better off under a tight roof and filling up on good grub than sloshing all night through the rain."

"That's the right way to look at it, boy," Sid said. The oldtimer did not see this quite eye to eye with the sheriff. The kid might be right. If he had been in charge he would have sent a man back to Perry with wires for those young Lee had named. At the worst it would have done no harm.

Sally Collins, daughter of the ranch owner, helped her mother wait on the hungry posse while the men ate. She was a pretty girl, not over sixteen, and the story of the train robbery was exciting news. What most fascinated her was something one of the men at the table dropped to his companion. The good-looking boy with the curly hair was suspected of being one of the bandits. She could not keep her eyes from him. It was thrilling to watch him and build a romance. He did not look like a bad man.

When she had a chance she whispered to her mother, "They think he is one of the outlaws, the curly-headed boy."

Mrs. Collins took a long look at him and answered, "I don't think he is."

After dinner she talked with him, Sally hovered in the background, listening. Bob told his story. They believed it.

The sheriff, Sid, and Bob were to sleep in the big house and the rest of the posse in the bunk house. The oldtimer and Bob were given an upstairs room. Sunderland looked out of the window. Twenty feet below was a pile of tiptilted ragged rocks. Anybody trying to escape that way would have tough going.

DOING DOUBLE DUTY
GAS SERVES THE HOME FRONT AND WAR INDUSTRIES

GASCO DOUBLE DUTY NEWS

★ REPORTING WARTIME ACTIVITIES OF THE OHIO FUEL GAS COMPANY ON THE HOME AND INDUSTRIAL FRONTS ★

Cooperation Asked In Conserving Your Use of Gas

As fall approaches more and more will be heard about the conservation of all forms of fuel and power by domestic and commercial customers in order to keep war industries producing at top speed. The Gas Company will be no exception in the participation of this program.

In normal years steel and manpower are available for drilling additional wells and extending gas transmission lines to new sources of supply to replace the gas used up in the past season. This year only enough materials were available to make a partial replacement of the exhausting supply.

Storage Helpful

Your gas company is more than fortunate in having established underground storage fields several years ago. Gas is brought in from Texas and West Virginia during warm weather when transmission lines normally would not be operating at capacity and the gas is forced back into Ohio wells which are closer to the markets. As the housewife cans food in summer for winter consumption, so does The Gas Company "can" gas for next winter when you will want it in larger quantities.

Even with these precautions for providing gas for cold weather, every care on the part of the customer is needed to conserve in their uses of gas. Advertisements suggesting savings in gas will be published from time to time. If every customer accepts his responsibility in using only the gas he actually needs, none need be seriously inconvenienced and there will be enough to meet all the essential requirements of war industries.

A few suggestions for saving gas could be put into practice at once. Keep burners adjusted so they will produce maximum heat with a minimum of gas. When the cooking has started, turn back the gas to a point just high enough to maintain the cooking. If more than one hot dish is prepared on the top burners, use the oven instead to save gas. Repair leaky hot water faucets. Clean out the sediment from the bottom of hot water tanks frequently. Use the plug in the basin, tub or sink instead of washing in running hot water. Heat only the rooms that you actually need for living. Shut off guest rooms, sun porches, recreation rooms and other space in your home that are not in daily use. Savings like these will save a lot of gas and incur no hardship on the family.

MAKE YOUR OLD APPLIANCES LAST

The appliances in your home—your range, refrigerator, washing machine, iron, yes, even your water heater and furnace must last for the duration.

These indispensable items are seldom found in our stores any more. Some are not being made at present, others are Victory models which the government has allowed manufacturers to produce for defense homes.

Another reason you are urged to keep your appliances in good working order is that repair parts are scarce, and repair shops have insufficient help. Therefore the cost is frequently high.

Get better acquainted with your appliances. Oil moving parts regularly, clean them after each use and do any minor repairs yourself as soon as they are needed. This will save your time and money, and help speed our war effort.

Visit The Home Service Nutrition Center

The Home Service Nutrition Center of The Gas Company is maintained for the aid of our customers.

Seven Basic Foods For A Healthful Home Front

Not since pioneer days has it been so important that we raise and preserve our own produce. Huge shipments of food must go to our armed forces, to our allies and to the starving people of invaded countries. A great number of foods is scarce and some will possibly become more scarce.

Your family must be served a balanced and varied diet throughout the fall and winter months. You must keep in mind that the meals you prepare for your family should be nutritious meals—three substantial meals each day based on the right food.

There are seven basic foods essential to good health. To keep your family in trim see that they get some from each of the following groups each day.

Group 1—Green and yellow vegetables — some raw — some cooked—frozen or canned.

Group 2—Oranges, Tomatoes, Grapefruit or Raw Cabbage or Salad Greens.

Group 3—Potatoes and other Vegetables and Fruits — raw, dried, cooked, frozen or canned.

Group 4—Milk and milk products—fluid, evaporated, dried milk or cheese.

Group 5—Meat, Poultry, Fish or Eggs—or Dried Beans, Peas, Nuts and Peanut Butter.

Group 6—Bread, Flour and Cereals—natural whole-grain or enriched or restored.

Group 7—Butter and fortified margarine (Vitamin A added).

Then, eat other foods you like also. By practicing these simple rules, you can do your part right in your own home, in aiding the war effort.

GASCO CANNED FOOD FAIR SEPTEMBER 20-27

Gasco Canned Food Fair Prize Ribbons on Display at The Gas Company

$50 in Cash and 108 Ribbons to Winners

Entrants in the Gasco Canned Food Fair with the best jars of canned vegetables and fruits will be awarded seventy-two cash prizes totaling $50 and 108 prize ribbons. Qualified judges will decide which are the best in each of the thirty-six classifications.

The fair, starting on September 20 and running for one week, is open to all customers of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company. There is no charge for entering.

All housewives are urged to select their best jars and compete for one of the valuable awards. Entries will be received at The Gas Company from September 8th to the 15th.

Judges, not connected with The Gas Company, will be announced within a few days. Stop in at The Gas Company for a copy of the official rules and regulations and your supply of the official canning labels. Remember, it's free—and don't forget the prizes!

BUY BONDS

The Third War Bond Drive starts September 9. Our government is asking for the use of all our available cash that can be spared for a few years. For borrowing this money, Uncle Sam will return to us 25% more than we loaned. Help our fighting men and our country by buying an extra War Bond in September.

Gas Is Vital to War Production

Back in peacetime years industries were permitted to use gas in their manufacturing processes only so long as the domestic customers did not need the entire available supply. This was provided for by law and in the contracts between the industries and The Gas Company. War has placed the shoe on the other foot. Today war industries are and must remain preferred customers because the goods they produce are so essential to Victory.

Nearly every industry along the Company's lines that uses heat in its processes, uses gas—the fuel that best meets all requirements. These industries number over a thousand in a state that ranks among the leaders in War Production. Also it ranks among the top of those states that have received the largest share of Army-Navy E Awards.

The Gas Company is in constant touch by telephone with the War Production Board in Washington, arranging a supply of gas that will meet the requirements of all essential industries. Red tape goes out the window in speeding these transactions. Plant A is going to step up its production and will need 30,000 more feet of gas an hour. Can we adjust the load on that line to handle it? Company B must have a new plant in a certain area. Can this line serve it or is there another line in that area that can accommodate it better. Can plant C connect to the lines for a million feet a day if it provides a standby fuel for emergencies? These questions require speedy solutions. Yet, as important as they are, the WPB and The Gas Company complete these arrangements without disrupting service to the regular domestic and commercial gas customers. It is, however, essential that the regular consumers heed the warning to conserve in their uses of gas so that these war industries can receive gas in the amounts they require.

War, by its emergency nature, seldom is run on a complete efficiency basis. On the other hand, it is only fair to explain your gas company's refreshing experience in this war. The gas division of the War Production Board is staffed by experienced men working long hours with their sleeves rolled up. Their big job is to keep gas flowing to war industries without disrupting the supply for civilian necessities. The Gas Company is pledged to the same purpose. To this time the cooperation between government, gas company and customers has been excellent. Let's keep it that way.

527 GASCO Employees In Armed Service

The Gas Company is rightly proud of the 527 Gasco men and women serving with Uncle Sam's armed forces.

Knowing these men and women intimately—having worked with them many years—we know that they are giving their country the same loyal, efficient service that they gave when in The Gas Company's employ.

The loss of 527 trained persons handicaps any company. We're no exception. In many instances it has been impossible to find other trained men and women to take their place. Those of our employees who remain on the job are now doing their best to maintain the service The Gas Company has offered customers in the past. It isn't the same smooth efficient service we've prided ourselves on, but it's the very best we can offer under the circumstances.

Until the day when these trained men and women in the armed services of our country return, we hope our thousands of customers will understand why the efficiency of our service has been impaired.

Vegetable Cookery Chart Free

We must all be vegetarians more often during war-time. And even though some meat cuts are scarce, we can get many vitamins from correctly cooked vegetables.

The Gas Company has a "Vegetable Cookery Chart" available which will assist you in preparing and cooking vegetables so they will retain the most flavor and the most vitamins.

The booklet is free at the Gas Company.

Also available are monthly nutrition bulletins, Home Canning booklets and recipes. Always think of The Gas Company Nutrition Center when you have some questions about your meals.

SAVE EXCESS FATS

Housewives, this is your war job. It is up to you to save all the excess fats you have. Even though the fats have become rancid, they can still be used in manufacture of war explosives.

All you have to do is strain the drippings, store them in a cool place and sell them to your meat dealer.

Today's Miracle Food — Soybeans

By PAULINE TREISCH
Home Service Representative

Soybeans are nature's own solution to present-day food rationing problems. The soybean is by no means a new food. The Chinese discovered its value over 5000 years ago. They used it extensively to replace butter, milk, eggs and meat in their diet—and in grateful appreciation called it a "gift from heaven." As a protein food, soybeans are comparable to meat. They are rich in Vitamins A, B, D and E and contain such important minerals as calcium, phosphorus, copper and iron. Fresh from the garden, green soybeans when boiled and buttered are delicious and taste very much like fresh lima beans. Soybean sprouts can serve as a fresh vegetable during much of the year, are especially enjoyed in salads and may be used with or without cooking.

Soybeans dried may be cooked and prepared similarly to navy beans. Soybean flour is richer than wheat flour and can be used to replace it in small amounts when making quick breads, cookies and cakes.

Biscuits

1 cup soybean flour
1 cup bread flour
4 tbsp. shortening
3 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
3 tsp. baking powder
⅔ cup milk

Sift flours, salt, sugar and baking powder. Add fat and rub lightly between fingers until well blended. Add milk and mix. Roll out half-inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut out and bake in oven at 400 degrees F. for 12 minutes.

Honey Soybean Ice Box Cookies

1 cup honey
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup soybean butter (or lard)
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
3 cups bread flour
2 cups soybean flour
2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup chopped nuts

Mix, roll into cylinders, chill for one or two days to allow for ripening of the dough. Cut into thin slices and bake in an oven at 400 degrees F. for 9 to 10 minutes on well-greased pans.

Baked Soybeans

4 cups cooked soybeans
2 cups tomato pulp
½ medium sized onion—minced
2 slices green pepper—cut fine
3 large stalks celery—cut fine
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. molasses
Bacon

Cook vegetables, add beans, salt and molasses. Cover with thin slices of bacon. Bake slowly.

Directions for Cooked Soybeans

In cooking soybeans, they should be soaked in plenty of water for 3 or 4 hours and cooked until soft. It generally takes longer to cook soybeans than navy beans.

To Cook Green Soybeans

Soybean pods may be gathered when the beans are full size but in the doughy stage. The pods are dipped into boiling water for 3 to 5 minutes and then the beans can be pressed out of the pod very easily. These are cooked and served like green limas.

Only bubbling, boiling water extracts the full flavor

There should be no need for any writer sitting down to his typewriter and hammering out phrases telling you why you should buy War Bonds.
There should be no need for hundreds of advertisements like this asking you to buy your share of Bonds, to lend your money to insure the Victory.
The men who are doing the fighting for us ... the men who are dying, cannot understand why there should be any necessity to plead for the use of your money ... money that is desperately needed to provide the weight of metal and manpower that will hasten the winning of this war.
If you are already lending 10 percent of your pay check ... top that 10 percent. ... If you aren't lending 10 percent ... ask yourself why. ... Ask yourself if your need is greater than your Country's. Figure it out yourself ... and then boost your Bond buying through Payroll Savings.

CHURCHILL ASKS PARLEY WITH SOVIETS

Calls Meeting Urgent, Hints Allies Will Cross English Channel in Force.

Canadian army has played an indispensable part in guarding the outposts of the British homeland," he said.

Swinging from Canada to France and then to Russia, Churchill said Britain had made a 20-year treaty with the Soviets and would do her best to make good.

It would not have been suitable for Russia to be represented at the Quebec conference, he said, since her treaty with Japan would have caused embarrassment.

Churchill observed that Premier Josef Stalin is in direct command of the Red army, and cannot leave the battlefront at the moment.

"To judge by the latest news from Russia, Stalin certainly is not wasting his time," he said, referring to the long string of Soviet victory announcements...

Nevertheless, Churchill said, he and President Roosevelt "will persevere in our efforts to meet Marshal Stalin."

Meanwhile, it seems necessary and urgent, he continued, that a conference of Russian, British and American foreign ministers be held to carry on Allied discussions.

Russia will be included in political discussions that will arise on of the Allied victories, Churchill said, and "we should consult with our Russian friends and Allies on all questions with candor."

Hinting Forthrightly at Allied plans for a frontal onslaught on western Europe, Churchill said he looked forward to the day when American and British armies "will cross the channel in full force."

"You certainly would not wish me to tell you when, or whether it is near or far," he said.

Referring to two years of talk about a second front in northern France, Churchill said that "anyone can see how desirable that would be" and it was natural that Russia, bearing a great weight of the war, should want such a front.

"I don't blame them at all for what they say," he continued.

The front will be opened, he said, when the prospect of continuing success is good and sound military plans dictate such action—and not because of political consideration of any kind.

As for himself, he has always "thought of a third front" instead of a second front, he said. He regarded the African campaign as "quite a good thing," clearing the continent. By far the greater part of the German air force has been drawn off the Russian front, he said.

"More than this," he went on, "we have established the strategic initiative."

Turning to the air war against Germany, Churchill promised that it "will increase in intensity and accuracy."

"All the Balkans is aflame," he said, and "the impending collapse of Italy" will bring help nearer to those unconquerable peoples.

Speaking again of Russia, he said the country had survived "frightful injuries" inflicted by Germany and in turn had dealt "mortal damage" to the German war machine.

"I have been asked whether the Germans will give in this year," Churchill said. "We see all Europe writhing under Hitler's tyranny . . . we cannot measure what result may attend the Allied campaign in the Mediterranean.

" . . . consider there are dangers in allowing our minds to dwell unduly on the favorable circumstances surrounding us . . . I regard speculation on when the war will end as vain and unprofitable.

"We are content to drive on at it until we have finished . . . the United Nations feel conscious of being called to a high duty, and will fearlessly discharge it with whatever strength is granted to them, however long it will last."

Wells Calls Off His Return Trip To Washington

BAR HARBOR, Me.—(AP)—Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, today continued his vacation at this exclusive summer resort after cancelling train reservations for Washington last last night.

A member of Welles' household said the undersecretary gave no indications of when he would return to Washington.

Welles remained silent on published reports that his resignation was in the hands of President Roosevelt. Even after news dispatches said that he had written personal friends in the diplomatic corps that the resignation had been accepted, Welles would only say "There's no comment that I can make."

When he came here a week ago, Welles said that he had not been well and was at Bar Harbor "for a few days' rest."

PARKS RECREATION PROGRAM SUCCESS, REPORT REVEALS

Mansfield City Parks Summer Recreation program inaugurated this year under the direction of Al Fendrick, completed a successful season, reports showed today.

The program financed by the war chest was alloted $2,000 for the summer's expenditures and at the close of the season there was a balance of $382.33, Fendrick reported today.

Salaries amounted to $840 and equipment, $777.67.

Attendance for the summer was much higher than anticipated. At the beginning of the season slightly more than 1,000 registered but for the 10-week period there was an attendance of 12,391.

Ninety per cent of the attendance was by children under 13 years of age. This was probably due to the fact that teen age girls and boys are now employed in various phases of civilian defense, farm labor and other employment, Fendrick said.

The three playgrounds were at Prospect, Johns and Liberty parks. More than 50 mothers who volunteered their services for supervisors and helpers completed the season.

MAPS PLAN ON PORT APPRAISAL

Wolff Says Bailey Will Be Considered In Selecting 3-Member Board.

Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff said today that James Bailey, who several days ago offered his services as an appraiser for the land needed for the Mansfield airport expansion, would be "considered" when the appraisers are named.

Bailey said yesterday that he was interested in seeing the airport project speeded up and had gone to Wolff about two weeks ago to offer to serve as an appraiser. He said he had heard nothing from his offer and city officials had not mentioned it.

Wolff explained today that at the time Bailey conferred with him, it had not been decided how the appraisal would be made so he was not in a position to give Bailey an answer.

Last week Mayor W. J. Locke proposed the appointment of a three-member board of appraisers and asked council to set up an additional $1,000 to defray the expenses of appraising and negotiating for the 1,000 acres of land the city will need for the airport.

The appraisers won't be appointed until council acts on the request for more funds at its meeting next Tuesday, Wolff said today.

WIDOW, 86, DIES

Mrs. Hester A. Myers Formerly Lived at Mifflin.

Mrs. Hester A. Myers, 86, widow of the late M. E. Myers of Mifflin, died Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Howard E. Morse, Detroit, after a lingering illness.

She was born Jan. 12, 1857, in Pennsylvania, coming to Mansfield at an early age. She resided in Mifflin but for the past four years made her home in Detroit.

Surviving are two sons, Earl Myers of Mansfield and Freeman Myers of Mifflin; one daughter, Mrs. Morse; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The body will arrive at the Wappner funeral home late this evening and funeral services will be held there Thursday at 1:30 p. m., in charge of Rev. G. E. Swoyer, pastor of First Lutheran church. Burial will be in the Zehner cemetery.

Carroll, Board's Clerk 10 Years, Named Commissioner

Present county employes who had filed their applications were J. Vern Finney of Mansfield, county relief director, and Carl Stough of Mansfield, assistant county highway maintenance superintendent.

Other applicants were Harry Maxwell of Perry township, John Swisher of Franklin township, Howard Koogle of Mifflin township, Oscar Krischbaum of Sandusky township, Albert Strater of Mansfield, Daniel Frankhauser, of Madison township, Irvin Hunter of Bloominggrove township, Tweed Finney of Madison township, Fred Griffon of Troy township, and J. E. Fendrick of Mansfield.

CLOSE TUBERCULOSIS HOME

TIFFIN—(AP)—The Seneca county tuberculosis hospital was closed today because of a dwindling number of patients and lack of help. Eight patients were transferred to the Mt. Vernon State hospital.

FIND NO TRACE OF STOLEN CAR

Two Inmates Captured, Police Unable to Locate Trail of Undertaker's Vehicle.

Despite the capture of two of four Mansfield reformatory fugitives yesterday in Chillicothe, Mansfield police were still without information today concerning a large automobile stolen from the Finefrock funeral home garage the morning the four youths fled from the reformatory.

While authorities are not certain the escaped inmates used the Finefrock car to make their getaway, police linked the car theft with the escape of the four youths.

Captured by police and state patrolmen in Chillicothe yesterday, Russell Allen, 24, and Samuel Shrider, 22, both of Newark, admitted stealing three cars, one in Newark, another in Bexley, and the third in Portsmouth.

There were four youths in the Portsmouth car when officers cornered them in Chillicothe, but two of them escaped through a cemetery.

Others who are still at large are Clarence Ramsey, 25, Newark, and Russell Bagley, 21, of Canton.

Police Chief R. E. McNamee of Bexley told The News-Journal today that the Newark car which was recovered in Bexley contained a quantity of clothing stolen from a Newark store. He said Bexley police were on the look-out for the Mansfield car.

CARDS DUE BACK

Red Cross Asks Blood Donors To Return Registrations.

Blood donor cards for Sept. 14 and 15 when the Red Cross Mobile Blood Donor unit will be back in Mansfield are to be returned to the Red Cross office by tomorrow, the blood donor committee said today.

Volunteers are usually given a week in which to return the cards, but had only the week-end in which to do it this time, they said. There have not been sufficient cards returned so the committee can begin making a schedule for the two days.

All persons receiving blood donor cards are asked to mail them back to the Red Cross office even if they are not able to donate blood this month.

Mansfield's New City Directory Goes Out Today

Mansfield's new city directories, which almost didn't come out this year because of the war, were distributed to business establishments, public offices and other subscribers.

Published by the Burch Directory company of Akron, the firm that has issued directories in Mansfield since 1910, the new books are about the same size as those published two years ago and almost identical in appearance.

There are 424 pages of names, arranged in alphabetical order, a complete street directory, a list of city and county officials, and churches, schools, lodges, city parks, public buildings, veterans' organizations, and officials and trustees of public institutions.

In the back of the book there's a classified directory of business places and professional men and an index of telephone numbers.

The directories, issued every two years in Mansfield since 1902, were a bigger problem than usual this year. The large number of men and women entering the armed forces every month and the influx of war workers made it difficult to keep an up-to-date file of names and addresses.

DAVIS SCORES VICTORY FOR OWI SERVICE

FDR Expected To Order Armed Services To Co-operate With News Agency.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, today appeared to have won a smashing victory in his insistent drive to achieve official recognition and support for OWI as the government's top wartime information agency.

Less than 24 hours after Davis had a long conference with President Roosevelt, the White House scheduled a conference of top war leaders today to chart a new information policy which is expected to result in strengthening Davis' position and the OWI.

Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early announced that the meeting was called to work out "news co-ordination between the state, war and navy departments and the OWI."

The conferees included Acting Secretary of War John J. McCloy; Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox; James J. Dunn, political advisor to Secretary of State Hull, and Davis.

Against the background of recent events, which included the sudden resignation of Nicholas Roosevelt as OWI liaison officer with the armed services, the calling of the meeting strongly indicated that Davis had won the first round in his fight to gain administration backing for his agency and end its precarious past role as a dispenser of war news.

The armed services long have disregarded efforts of the OWI and have treated the organization as a rank outsider. This treatment culminated in the resignation of Nicholas Roosevelt, distant relative of the president, who quit with a stinging blast against army-navy relations with OWI.

Davis, in conferring with the president, was reported to have requested that OWI be made the government's information agency in fact as well as name and to have included Nicholas Roosevelt's letter of resignation among evidence which he was said to have laid before the chief executive. The letter said in part:

"The passage of time has made it clear that, so long as the relations of the OWI with the war and navy departments rest solely on a basis of petition and suggestion, you, and only you, in the OWI can do anything further to improve the public relations policies of the army and the navy."

NEW DISTRICT

Erie, Huron Counties Added To Mansfield WMC Area.

The War Manpower commission today announced the establishment of two new areas in Ohio and added Erie and Huron counties to the Mansfield-Marion area.

Already in the Mansfield-Marion district were Richland, Ashland, Crawford, Morrow, Knox, Marion, Hardin, and Wyandot counties. Marcus J. Kintz is director of the area. He has headquarters in Sandusky.

The two new areas, comprising central and southern Ohio counties, will have headquarters in Lancaster.

A change in the eastern Ohio set-up merged Holmes and Coshocton counties with the previous tri-county area of Stark, Tuscarawas, and Carroll counties. That change was made to link Millersburg with the Canton-Alliance-Massillon district where many of the Holmes county workers are employed.

3—In Memoriam

IN LOVING MEMORY of my dear and only child, Jessie H. Grice, who went away 3 years ago. And oh, what sad, lonely weeks and years these have been and always will be till Jesus calls me home to meet all my loved ones there. What a joyful meeting that will be. Words can't express how kind and good she was. She united with the Christian Church in early life and always lived in that Christian faith. There never could be a Mother and Daughter closer to each other all through life than we were.

SLIGHT UPWARD TREND SEEN IN STOCK MARKET

Federal Reserve Bank Tells of Big Increase In Demand Deposits.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading industrial stocks displayed modest recovery inclinations in today's early market transactions.

Fractional gainers at a moderately active opening included General Motors, Chrysler, Bethlehem, Loew's, U. S. Rubber, International Nickel, Commonwealth Edison, Union Carbide, American Can and Godyear.

Market analysts saw a further inflation indicator in the federal reserve summary disclosing demand deposits (adjusted) of member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Aug. 25 rose $834,000,000 to a total of $35,145,000,000. Increases included $72,000,000 at Cleveland.

CHICAGO — (AP) — The grain market started about steady today in quiet dealings.

Wheat opened unchanged to ¼ cent higher than yesterday's finish. September $1.46⅛, and subsequently was about unchanged. Rye started unchanged to ⅛ lower. September $1.02½-1.02¾.

ATTEND PARLEY

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus United Brethren church will send a group of delegates to the Sandusky district conference to be held in Toledo through Friday. In the party will be Rev. Walter M. Purdy, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Wilhelm and Mrs. Mary Kirk.

THEATERS

Dreams He's King.

Time jumps back a few hundred years when Red Skelton starts dreaming in "DuBarry Was a Lady" musical film in technicolor and filled with comedy, which is showing the rest of the week at the Ohio theater. He dreams he's King Louis and Lucille Ball is DuBarry and the fun gets fast and furious with many musical episodes and glamor on the side. Tommy Dorsey and his band are featured in catchy modern swing numbers and a bevy of beautiful girls add to the musical interludes. Gene Kelly and Virginia O'Brien are also stars in the cast.

History-Making Movies.

An action movie based on the huge job of building the Alaska highway, the Alaskan-Canadian road which was so vital to the protection of our northernmost outposts against the Japs, is showing at the Madison theater. It stars Richard Arlen and Jean Parker. Co-attraction is "Flight for Freedom," with Rosalind Russell and Fred MacMurray in the leads. Action of the movie carries through 10 years of aviation history prior to 1932 and reveals how the last flight of a woman ace made possible the successful aerial bombings of such Jap-held islands as Gilbert and Marshall groups.

Davies' Report.

Co-featuring with "Mission to Moscow" at the Ritz theater, beginning Wednesday, is "On Dress Parade," starring the Dead End Kids. "Mission to Moscow," the film based on the book by former Ambassador to Russia, Joseph E. Davies, stars Walter Huston and Ann Harding. It is an actual account of the momentous events preceding the second global war, viewed through the eyes of a typical American and his family.

ITALY INVADED NEAR CALABRIA, NAZIS REPORT

Claim Warships Support Raid, Admit Part of Force Still at Large.

German military quarters to be a matter of a short time, the agency said.

Nazi military spokesmen were quoted as expressing the opinion that the "small" landing maneuver probably was intended to serve as preparation for a major bridgehead.

The fact that the British had with them considerable communications equipment, which they attempted to set up immediately after landing, seemed to bear out that assumption, the Berlin report added.

Reports Allies Make Invasion Preparations

STOCKHOLM—(AP)—A German foreign office military spokesman told foreign correspondents in Berlin that the Allies were making new invasion preparations in the Mediterranean, dispatches to the Swedish press said today.

The spokesman said that fleets of transports, invasion barges and warships were being formed in eastern Tunisia, Sicily, and Oran, and suggested that the Allies were planning an attack on southern Italy or France. He added that 300,000 French troops were concentrated at Oran.

Red Cavalry Drives On Two Objectives

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(INS)—Premier Joseph Stalin announced in a special order of the day today that Soviet troops have entered the northern Ukraine.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(INS)— Smolensk, key Nazi defense bastion for much of the enemy's crumpling central front, came under direct threat today when Red army legions stormed into strategic Yelnya, only 45 miles southeast of that big rail and manufacturing center.

LONDON—(AP)—Red army cavalry and tank units which sheared off the southern anchor of the German lines at Taganrog on the Sea of Azov were reported advancing steadily today to threaten the seaport of Mariupol, 75 miles to the west. And the industrial city of Stalino, 70 miles northwest.

Remnants of the Taganrog garrison, trapped by Russian forces which drove through to the coast some 28 miles west of the city, meanwhile were being methodically wiped out, a Soviet communique said.

Triumphantly the Russians announced that 15 populated places had been recaptured in the great victory which threatened the whole German right wing and proclaimed that the entire Rostov region had now been liberated from the Nazi invaders.

The capture of Taganrog followed the same general pattern as the pincers movements which resulted in the fall of the German bastions of Orel and Kharkov earlier this summer.

Yanks and RAF Keep UP Air Assault

LONDON (AP)—Following up a heavy RAF attack on the Rhineland, American Marauders today raided a German airfield at Lille-Vanderville in France and a power station at Mazingarbe, France.

Headquarters of the Eighth American air force called the attacks "successful." One of the B-26 medium bombers is missing.

One fighter from the RAF Allied and Dominion Spitfire escort which accompanied the bombers was also listed as missing.

Preliminary reports showed three enemy fighters were destroyed.

Mighty fleets of heavy and medium bombers roared across over the continent to bring the fourth year of the war to a thunderous close.

The war-busy industrial cities of Muenchen-Gladbach and Rheydt were hammered by RAF bombers last night a communique announced, while Mosquito bombers raided Duisburg at the same time, ending a two-day lull in the aerial offensive.

Twenty-eight bombers were lost.

A virtually unbroken procession of raiders began drumming across the coast at daybreak close on the heels of the massive RAF sweep against the sprawling Rhineland industrial area.

Fierce Air Battles Rage Over Italy

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—(AP)—Newly-massed concentrations of enemy fighters battled U. S. maurauder bombers and escorting Lightnings yesterday in the bitterest combat of the air war over Italy.

Seventy to 75 Germans and Italians jumped the Allied fleets near the coast and over the target, and a great running battle continued afterward more than 100 miles out to sea, with the Axis losing 17 planes.

Flying Fortresses meantime smacked the Viterbo airfield north of Rome with a heavy rain of bombs. Allied headquarters announced today.

Formations of Mitchells with Lightning escort and RAF Wellingtons staged a day and night assault on freight yards at Civita Vecchia northwest of Rome.

Other medium, light and fighter bombers raided railway objectives in southern Italy during the day, and fighter-bombers struck at communications in Sardinia.

In all, 21 enemy planes were downed, with 15 Allied aircraft reported missing.

The Fortresses, meeting comparatively light opposition, strewed bombs throughout dispersal areas at the strategic Viterbo airdrome 40 miles above Rome, leaving hangars and other buildings in flames. They shot down two enemy planes.

All Europe Guesses Where Ciano Really Is

LONDON—(AP)—A good part of Europe joined the guessing game today over the whereabouts of Count Galeazzo Ciano, former Italian foreign minister and son-in-law of Benito Mussolini who apparently has escaped from house arrest at his home in Rome.

He was variously reported arrested near the French frontier, hiding in a Spanish embassy in Rome, and at Innsbruck in Germany.

At least two reports had Ciano at Innsbruck. A Reuter dispatch from the Italian frontier said the latest word was that he had gotten over the border "with the assistance of foreign friends" and that his escape was causing great indignation throughout Italy.

This coincided with the Germany underground radio Atlantik report, which said Ciano was at Innsbruck.

BATTLE TIDE TURNS DURING WAR'S 4TH YEAR

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—In history's crowded annals, the fourth year of global conflict now ended stands an excellent chance of being listed as one of the most important 365-day periods of all time.

For within the 12-months' span beginning with last Sept. 1, when the fourth year of war began, the Allies succeeded not only in stemming the onrushing tide of Axis aggression but gradually wresting the initiative and launching the drives that led to Tunisia, Sicily, Orel and Munda.

The war news last Sept. 1 was one of continued Allied withdrawals in Africa, in Russia and in the wilds of New Guinea. On that day Axis tanks, elite light infantry and dive-bombers penetrated British minefields north of the Qattara Depression at the flank of the El Alamein line. The center of the batttle for Egypt and Africa raged at a point only 75 miles west of Alexandria.

It was not many days, however, before the tide began to turn, imperceptibly at first, then with ever growing strength as Allied supply depots began to pour their steadily increasing resources into the fray.

On Sept 10, four days after the Germans had taken Novorossisk and three days after the Japanese had landed reinforcements in the Solomons and gained anew near Kokoda, the British invaded Madagascar. Thirteen days later, while fighting raged in the cellars and on the rooftops of blazing Stalingrad, the Tommies entered Tananarive, capital of the French island.

All this time the Allies were striking at the Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, beating back counter-attacks on Guadalcanal and sending planes by night deep into the Reich—all helping keep the Axis busy until.

El Alamein!

It was in the darkness of Oct. 22 that the big guns of the British Eighth army laid down their nerve-shattering barrage that sounded the trumpet call to a subsequent Allied offensive all over the globe. Two days later infantry and tank forces penetrated a few of Rommel's best positions and on Nov. 4 came a triumphant announcement that the Germans and Italians were in full retreat, pressed so badly the Fascists were begging for an armistice to permit them to bury their dead.

During these same days American forces trapped a Japanese invasion force off Guadalcanal, bombing two carriers, two battleships and three cruisers and chalking up 100 enemy planes definitely destroyed. American losses: A carrier and a destroyer.

Hitler boasted on Nov. 8 that Stalingrad was firmly in German hands in a vain clarion call to bolster morale at home. The next day Algiers capitulated; two days later Admiral Darlan ordered hostilities against the Allies to end and Hitler retaliated by instructing his officers to occupy virtually all of France and the Island of Corsica.

Tobruk, scene of one of Britain's bravest epics, was occupied again by the Tommies Nov. 12, just 24 hours before United States naval forces opened a terrific two-day battle with the Japanese off Guadalcanal which cost the sons of Nippon a battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, five destroyers and eight transports sunk with a loss of 30,000 men, plus a battleship and six destroyers damaged and four cargo vessels beached and destroyed. American losses included two light cruisers and six destroyers.

In late November Moscow began to speak of encircling the Germans at Stalingrad while the French scuttled their fleet at Toulon on the 27th and Gona fell in New Guinea on the 24th. The Russians mounted a definite offensive at Stalingrad in the closing days of the month and then the debacle really started. By Dec 31 the Nazis suffered 312,650 casualties and lost 1,589 towns to the Soviets' three-pronged drive which hurled them out of the metropolis.

The Japanese were wiped out at Buna Jan 4 while the British were racing toward Tripoli, which they seized Jan 23. The famous battle of the Bismarck sea, in which American airmen wiped out a 22-ship Nipponese convoy came March 4, almost two months to the day after the siege of Leningrad was smashed and some four weeks after the battle for Stalingrad was announced officially as ended.

Then came Tunisia, with the occupation of Tunis and Bizerte on May 7 and the end of resistance on Cape Bon May 12, the surrender of Pantelleria June 11 and of Lampedusa the next day. American troops took Attu May 30 while others began to roll through Rendova and on toward Munda on June 30. An abortive Nazi summer offensive got under way July 5, but crumpled 10 days later as the Reds began their drive and took Orel, Belgorod, Kharkov and Taganrog. Sicily was invaded July 10, cleaned out Aug 19—eighteen days after Berlin itself had been ordered evacuated in fear of RAF assaults of the type which gutted Hamburg. Meanwhile, Benito Mussolini had disappeared into oblivion, and the year ended with his blasted Italy on the verge of surrender.

DEPUTY REGISTRARS NAMED TO ISSUE NEW DRIVER LICENSES

C. W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, today announced a list of deputy registrars who will issue new driver's licenses in the Richland county area, starting Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Applicants for licenses are urged to ask for printed explanations of the motor vehicle laws. Deadline for renewing licenses is Sept. 30. Drivers must show their current licenses when applying for a new one. The fee is 40 cents.

Ashland county deputies are William C. Needly, Ashland Auto club; Mrs. Helen Grady, Hayesville, L. O. Franks, Jeromesville; D. D. Wigton, Loudonville, Mrs. Marguerite Gladeen, Perrysville; Gerald Lindsay, Savannah; Mrs. Harriett Haulk, Sullivan, Paul Ganyard, Ashland.

Crawford county lists M. B. Morrisey, Bucyrus Auto club; Fred Trautman, Bucyrus, J. B McCarter, Crestline Auto club; Grace Thomas, Galion Auto club; Mrs. Margie Shafstall, New Washington, Carrie Bittikofer, Sulphur Springs, and Emmett Dudley, Tiro.

Four are listed for Holmes county, Mrs. Lena Leguillon, Killbuck; George Stevens, Big Prairie; John Wynne, Millersburg; and Dan Kinsley, Winesburg.

In Huron county, Frank Gilbert will be registrar for New London; May Fleming, Plymouth, Lloyd Signs, North Fairfield; N. C. Underwood, Greenwich; and Frank Ladefeld, Willard.

Knox county registrars will be R. M. Hasson, Centerburg; E. J. Thorp, Danville; Raymond Yost, Fredericktown; A. A. Topp, Mt. Vernon and Mrs. Neva Porterfield, Blandensburg.

Principal amendment to the laws affecting motorists puts "teeth" in the statute covering driver responsibility in case of accident. This amended law becomes operative Sept. 20, and thereafter a driver may lose his license for five years if he is unable to meet a judgment for damages returned against him in a court of record.

Another change in the driver's license law lowers the age limit for a chauffeur's permit from 18 to 16 years.

Hubby All Right When Drunk, But It Cost Too Much.

CHICAGO—(INS)—A brand new one went into the court records today. Many a wife seeking a divorce has come before Judge Joseph Sabath and complained of her husband's intoxication.

But with 24-year-old Jule Boston, it was just the other way around. She got along swell with her husband, Marvin, when he was drunk.

The trouble was that it cost her half her salary as a secretary to keep Marvin properly primed. She thought she should have, and she got, a divorce.

DIES FOR DOG

Seaman Drowns Trying To Save Cutter's Mascot.

MANITOWOC, Wis—(INS)—James P. Sexton 23, seaman first class, was dead today because he tried to save the life of a pet dog, mascot on the coast guard cutter Tamarack of which Sexton was a crew member.

Sexton drowned after diving into the Manitowoc river near the shipyards in an attempt to rescue the dog. His body was recovered an hour later by a navy diver.

MUST REGISTER

All stove dealers in the county were reminded today by C. C Beelman, chairman of the Richland county ration board, that they must register at the ration board office on Sept. 1, 2, or 3.

Dealers must also get copies of the manual containing the regulations on the sale of stoves. These are available now at the ration board office, Beelman said.

WRECK DEATH TOLL NOW 27

46 Injured as Steam Pours Into Limited That Rammed Freight Engine.

Officials said the limited, all but 10 minutes of its lost time already made up, sideswiped the freight engine which was believed to have been backing its train onto a siding to make way for the fast train of 13 passenger cars and two mail cars.

The passengers, panic-stricken, jammed the doors. Others broke windows in attempts to flee. Their screams mingled with the hiss of escaping steam. Many were cut by flying glass.

Wayland, a small community in Steuben county, sent out calls for help to surrounding towns and cities. The Wayland hospital, with only 15 beds, was unable to care for the injured. Ambulances and private automobiles sped to nearby communities with the victims, ignoring a blackout which covered all of New York state except New York City.

When the army was informed of the wreck, authorities called off the blackout for the Wayland area. Air raid wardens and other civilian defense personnel formed rescue squads.

Survivors told of horrifying scenes as the coaches piled up behind the locomotive.

Robert Kaiser, 32, of Kenmore, N. Y., said the freight engine "fell into the side of our car."

"Its boiler burst and filled the car with hot steam," he said. "Passengers were scalded. Many were cut by shattering glass as some smashed windows trying to get out. The odor of burnt flesh was terrible.

"Many other men were pounding their fists against the windows. There were screams of hysterical people. I was trying to get out a rear door, but it was jammed with other passengers, all trying to get out at the same time.

"I managed to crawl along the aisle and finally got outside—just how I don't know."

Corp Wade Gibson of Carbondale, Pa., who was on the car which received the burst of steam, said passengers seemed to lose their heads. He said he and other soldiers in the car broke windows in an effort to let out the steam and escape. He was cut.

Service men who were not injured aided townspeople in the rescue work and many housewives opened their homes to take care of those less seriously hurt. Many of the injured were members of the Women's Land Army, recently recruited in and around New York City to aid in harvesting crops at Silver Springs, N. Y.

The wreckage of the limited tied up the tracks and trains were rerouted over the Erie line.

The dead and injured included:

Dead: Ann Chelko, 22, Cleveland, O.; Margaret Guamback, Cleveland, O.; Mary Grant, no address.

The injured included: Mrs. Emma Wiedler, Erie, Pa.

14 MORE FILE

New Petitions Presented For Rural Elections.

Petitions for township and village offices were arriving today at the county board of elections at an increased rate as the Sept. 3 deadline for filing petitions drew closer.

Office seekers today filed 14 petitions making a total of 30 filed to date. However, this number is far short of the 170 offices to be filled in the November balloting.

Petitions were filed today by Earl Stevenson for Shiloh mayor, H. B. Miller for Shiloh clerk, Mrs. Helen Murphy for Shiloh treasurer, Emerson Shafer, Hershel Hamman, W. H. Kochenderfer, H. R. Nesbitt, C. H. Lannert, Walter Porter and H. L. Kendig for members of Shiloh council, Glenn Swanger, E. C. Geisinger, and A. Jacobs for members of Shiloh board of trustees of public affairs, and Floyd L. Beal of Butler for Worthington township trustee.

were announced. In one made by marine Corsairs, eight Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground at Kahili airdrome in northern Solomons. At least seven barges were demolished by planes attacking Santa Isabel and Kolombangara, both in the central Solomons.

Other planes dropped 17 tons of bombs on Babo, Dutch New Guinea, 700 miles north of Australia, destroying one plane and setting big fires, and bombed the harbor and supply areas at Gasmata, New Britain.

NOW WE HAVE TOO MUCH BEEF!

Kansas City Market Flooded By Cattle Shipments.

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Plenty of steaks—and a beef crisis—are on the way.

Grass-fat beef for a steak-hungry nation is beginning to flood the Kansas City market. Receipts yesterday were approximately 240 carloads, the largest supply in several years.

Southwestern cattlemen, though, fear a crisis will follow if widespread liquidation of their herds continues—and they're meeting Thursday to try to halt the stampede to sell, and show the way to steadier supplies in the months to come.

STILL MISSING

Police Find No Trace of Retired Ohio Oil Man.

MARIETTA—(AP)—Police said today they had no trace of 82-year-old B. C. Robinson, retired oil man, missing from his home since last Thursday.

It is believed that Robinson, who told his family he was going "for a walk," may have wandered into sparsely settled hills.

"That was a swell picture, Dad!"

YES, going to the movies is a simple, homey, everyday part of our lives. But it represents an American privilege, too—the right to spend our leisure time as we wish; the right to unfettered education; the right to see what's happening in the world, truthfully and accurately.

And, though you may not often think of it, your railroad helps make such entertainment possible. For over its rails speed the films from Hollywood, scenes from all over America, news-reels from all over the world. Yes, even in this little part of our American way of life, the B & O makes its contribution.

Of course, today, the B & O's biggest job is the transportation of troops and war supplies. But, when the war is won, we again will be working full-time to help your community enjoy the American way of life at its best.

DANES STRIKE AFTER NAZIS CRUSH REVOLT

Paralyze Every Type of Work In Major Cities, Germans Rush In Troops.

lords recognized the threat of Moeller's influence in Denmark by immediately arresting most leaders of his conservative party.

Danish legal experts in Sweden took the view today that a state of war now exists between Germany and Denmark since the military dictatorship powers which Von Hannecken says he is applying under Article 42 of The Hague convention can be exercised only by an enemy force.

Confronting Von Hannecken was an abdication threat from King Christian. Refugees reported the king said he would step down if the Germans arrested Danes as hostages in connection with battles, sabotage or other disturbances.

Denmark's most popular and influential figure, he maintained that innocent persons should not be arrested.

Reports reaching Sweden through rigid Nazi censorship said 1,000 army and 200 navy officers had been interned. One unconfirmed rumor reported a roundup of Danish Jews in which 50 were arrested, including C. B. Henriques, leader of the Jewish colony in Copenhagen.

Already the Danes, besides sinking their own fleet, have blown up all Danish-manned fortifications except those at Midelgrunet. Here, however, the garrison threw all its ammunition into the sea before the Germans had an opportunity to seize it.

Telephone, cable and mail communications between Denmark remained severed today.

Reports reaching Sweden today said that all members of the Danish royal family, with the exception of the king and queen, were being held as prisoners by the Germans in Amalienborg palace in Copenhagen. The king and queen were last reported at Sorgenfri castle, 15 miles outside the capital.

Soldiers Make Good Escape to Sweden

STOCKHOLM —(AP)— Danish soldiers commandeered boats at pistol point to escape from Denmark to Sweden Sunday.

The captain of a little motor fishing craft told this story at Hoeganaes:

"I docked at the little port of Gilleleje because of a storm. Sleeping in my bunk, I was awakened by the clatter of persons coming on board, and then two officers walked into my cabin, pointed pistols at me and said 'we are going to Sweden.'

"Fifty-six infantry soldiers came aboard along with two other officers. Two Danish policemen were at the wharf. One ran back home and got his wife and they came aboard too.

"Then a 16-year-old boy came along, begging to go. All crowded aboard without any belongings and we headed into the stormy night expecting to be shot at at any moment.

"Germans were patrolling all the waters between Denmark and Sweden with fast coastal boats. But we got across without trouble."

French Patriots And Nazis Clash

NEW YORK — (INS) — New clashes between French patriots and Nazi occupational forces in France were reported today by the French Committee of National Liberation in a radio broadcast.

Bitter fighting which broke out last Tuesday in the Savoy mountains at St. Jean De Maurienne was reported still in progress with unabated violence. Patriots also fought the German garrison at Nay, near the Spanish frontier, and a group of Frenchmen who escaped deportation to Germany stormed the town hall of Montreuil Sur Mer and escaped with stocks and food ration books, according to the broadcast.

Hero Dead Buried On Attu

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, Sept. 1.

There is need of particular fortitude, vigilance and precaution on this day, which is marked for reversals, surprises, duplicity and peculiar undercurrents, a combination which may prove futile, or constructive, according to the prudence, vision, skill and wariness individually exercised. There may be tenacious obstacles to climb over if they may not be pierced, and tricky circumstances may be met by stratagem and shrewdness, but in all have faith, persistence, and guard the health and nervous tension and the tide should turn and bring enduring gains, perhaps with novel programs.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the eve of a year destined to tax their powers of endurance and fortitude, their ingenuity, skill and ability. Undercover situations may demand shrewd insight and rigorous handling, huge obstructions may be climbed over or around.

A child born on this day may have much capacity for endurance, fortitude and patience, against reversals and duplicities in life. These it may circumvent by its shrewdness, insight and sound abilities.

COUPLE MARRIED

SHELBY—A wedding of interest in Shelby and Shiloh took place Sunday at 3:30 p. m. uniting Miss Dorothy Seaman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Seaman of near Shiloh, and Blaine Haverfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Haverfield of near Shelby.

The garden ceremony took place at Congress, O., with the Rev. John Miller, pastor of the White Hall First Church of God, officiating. The couple were unattended.

The bride wore a street length dress of blue silk crepe trimmed with white around the collar and down the front. Her accessories were blue. Her corsage was of mixed flowers.

Mrs. Haverfield attended the Shiloh schools. The bridegroom graduated from Shiloh high school and is employed at the P rsel Air Supply depot.

MARRIED AT CHURCH

Announcement has been made here of the marriage of Miss Margaret St. John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank St. John of Shelby, to Howard C. Kimpel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kimpel of Cleveland, which took place Saturday at 11:30 a. m. at the First Lutheran church.

Rev. D. Bruce Young, pastor of the church, officiated. Attending the couple were Mrs. Raymond Baum of Lakewood and George Baum of Cleveland.

Following the wedding, an informal reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. A buffet luncheon was served. Later in the day the couple left for a wedding trip and after Sept. 7 will be at home at 12:55 Jackson avenue in Lakewood.

The bride graduated from the Shelby schools. The bridegroom is employed at the Thompson Products in Cleveland.

HITS NEW DEAL PLANS-BY-WEEK

Landon Says Administration Fools Foreign Peoples With Shining Promises.

States couldn't provide food for all the world, "as outlined by the administration" and also produce the same amount of livestock as in the past. "The New Dealers changed Thanksgiving, killed the little pigs and now they want to put us on the rice and fish diet of the Orientals."

The country should demand an accounting of the vast quantities of food being given away under lease-lend, he added.

"There is growing fear that the administration is fooling foreign peoples with the same expansive iridescent promises that it has tried on the American people in the past 10 years. Therefore, we will suffer humiliating loss of national prestige and friendship.

"Stalin always speaks first for Russia. Churchill always speaks for England first. It is high time you and I speak first for America."

riders; the Wallendas, famous tight-wire performers; the Flying Concello troupes of somersaulting stars, and the Reynolds and Donegan Pyramid Skating girls.

The Ringling show, which is having one of the biggest seasons in its history, usually plays only the larger cities but this year it is reducing its tour to save railroad facilities. It will come to Mansfield from Marion. The circus had a record early-season engagement in Madison Square Garden, New York, and is now showing in Chicago.

With the circus will be the noted Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey band under the direction of Merle Evans. The band was eliminated during the latter part of last season following some labor trouble, but was brought back with the opening of the 1943 tour.

BUSES WILL BE CROWDED
Around Labor Day!

Postpone your trip, if you can

... saving more space for Servicemen and War Workers

Buses are sure to be crowded before and during the Labor Day week-end, so try to postpone travel that can wait a few days or weeks. A little later your trip will be more pleasant, less crowded—and you'll be doing a big favor for men and women in uniform, war workers and others who must travel now. By "spreading out" trips over the Fall months, travelers will help transportation do its vastly important war job.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, AUGUST 31, 1943.

Last chance to buy your August war bond.

Black markets are made possible only by black market patrons.

A sailor on a bus said the other day, "Since landing I have ridden 800 miles on busses and trains, and stood up 600 of them." Remember that when you plan a week-end or Labor day trip.

Many Calls On Limited Space

FROM the war finance division of the treasury department in Washington comes a letter to newspapers, intended as "a reminder that we are depending almost solely upon the power of the American press to sell people of this country on the vital importance of investing to their limit through the Third War Loan."

This third war loan drive, which is scheduled to start Thursday, September 9, has its goal set for $15,000,000,000, and will be the biggest single financing operation in world history. The quota for Ohio is $698,000,000 and for Richland county, $6,066,000.

The slogan for this drive is "Back the Attack," with emphasis on requirement for vast sums of money needed to proceed without interruption in the offensive warfare that is now off to a good start.

This time the appeal will be to individuals to buy bonds in support of two wars—war against the Axis powers and war against inflation.

All newspapers, as heretofore, will gladly give liberally of space in carrying information about the war bond campaign to their readers and in emphasizing the importance of supporting this financing effort.

It seems appropriate, however, as this space is asked for and willingly given, that newspapers should suggest adoption of some form of co-ordination by the multiplicity of government agencies which seek space that would total more than that available in a newspaper, even if all other material were eliminated.

Today's News-Journal, for instance, could be more than filled with press releases from various government departments, all of which have merit, but which extend to lengths which no newspaper would be able to use.

For example, there are 12 typewritten sheets on various phases of motor transportation of essential commodities, as announced by Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation; five sheets of copy from the Writers' War Board on fuel oil rationing and related subjects; an article, with pictures, on the fine work of the Seabees, from the recruiting and induction division of the bureau of navy personnel; publicity for an experimental school to teach rescue work, and an appeal for additional licensed seamen to serve in the merchant marine.

None of the scores of government departments and agencies making appeal to newspapers for space seems to have heard about the reduction in newsprint allowances to papers, or of space-requirements for other purposes—primarily, NEWS.

Stop Gasoline Bootlegging NOW!

THERE'S no way of checking, of course, the extent to which gasoline is being bootlegged in Mansfield and other cities, but information is becoming sufficiently authenticated to justify suspicion that illegal sale of this commodity is attaining "big business" proportions.

A sad angle in this situation is that persons who patronize this black market operation seem unimpressed by an idea that they are doing anything wrong, or that they are hampering the national war effort by using gasoline needed for military purposes.

While this feeling is encouraged, in a way, by apparent waste of much gasoline on what many people deem needless non-military plane flying, truck and farm allowances diverted to use in private cars, and the like, the fact remains that some semblance of impartial distribution must be established if rationing restrictions are to succeed, or be accepted without complaint by those who refuse to make illegal purchases.

It now appears that the present rationing system, as applied to gasoline, is not effective in preventing some unscrupulous dealers from getting a supply which they can sell without requirement for coupons. This is not only unfair to law-abiding dealers but also to honest motorists who restrict their driving to the limits prescribed by their coupons.

This should be changed—and quickly.

Another Voyage for the Gripsholm

WHEN the steamer Gripsholm sails for the Orient in a few weeks, she will carry Japanese prisoners of war to exchange, in Portuguese India, for prisoners taken by the Japanese. It will be a joyful homecoming for those Americans who can come. The Japanese are happy at the idea of going home, but whether they will find much comfort when they get there is not so sure.

Besides the men, the steamer will take about 1,400 tons of supplies for prisoners of war still left in the hands of the enemy. Almost a million packages will be included in the shipload, 55 per cent for prisoners, both military and civilian, in the Philippines, 6 per cent for Java, 12 per cent for Shanghai and 27 per cent for Japan. Food, clothing, medical supplies, books and recreational equipment are also being sent.

Next of kin to prisoners are sending hundreds of packages. The Red Cross is sending 1,200 such parcels to prisoners and internees who have no next of kin. Mail for prisoners will probably be carried, also.

A mercy ship put out from San Francisco for the Far East about a year ago but was turned back on word that Japan would not give it safe conduct through the war zones. Now that there are Japanese to be sent back, perhaps the Gripsholm will be allowed to finish her voyage.

New Breach In Hitler's Empire May Open Way to Land Invasion

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

HITLER'S empire of conquered and satellite peoples is breaking up before his anxious eyes, from the Balkan cockpit of eastern Europe clear across the continent to the other cockpit on the shores of the North Sea.

Signs of disintegration multiply, latest among the crises to tear the foundation of the Hitlerian structure are the grave situations in the widely separated states of Denmark and Bulgaria.

It's significant that these two countries are among those which have been more favored by the Boche. They haven't, like Poland, endured the atrocities which have drawn from the United States and Britain denunciation and a promise of retribution. Hitler has adopted an air of beneficience towards the Danes and Bulgarians, hoping to use them among the foundation stones of his new order.

Still, it's not surprising that the liberty-loving Danes, hardy descendents of the Vikings who pushed across the uncharted seas to America centuries before any other European explorers, finally have broken out in fierce revolt against the Boche.

That creates an especially grave danger for Hitler, since Denmark provides one of the several potential invasion coasts for the Allies, and the latter might take quick advantage of the situation if things looked particularly good.

Also a grave politico-military problem for the master gangster is the situation in the Balkans—another potential invasion theatre for the Allies. Bulgaria, his buffer state against the unpredictable Turks and one of his chief bulwarks against an assault by the United Nations up the peninsula, is tottering in loyalty.

King Boris has met sudden and mysterious death, and his people have been parading the streets of their sombre capital, demanding peace. Pro-German Premier Philov apparently is trying to hold the fort for Hitler, but his chances of success don't seem good as things now stand.

It would be interesting to know which situation is giving the miserable Hitler the greater worry. Likely it's the Danish upheaval. A successful Allied invasion of western Europe right now, when the Russians are ripping up the Nazi lines in eastern Europe, would place Germany in the desperate position of having to wage major war on opposite fronts.

* * *

THEN there's another aspect to the imbroglio in little Denmark. As I pointed out last week, relations between neighboring Sweden and the Reich have become so strained that the Swedes are walking close to war with Nazidom. If they come into the conflict under those circumstances, they would automatically become one of the Allies. That would make Hitler's western front a hot spot.

King Boris was a dictator by nature. As virtually absolute monarch he carried his people into the war on the side of the Axis.

He probably was impelled to do this because of Germany's powerful influence in the Balkan peninsula, because he thought the Reich was likely to win and bestow favors on Bulgaria, and because he was son-in-law of the king of Italy.

However, the Bulgarian people followed Boris into the war on the side of the Axis reluctantly. They are largely anti-German and are very pro-Russian, because of the Slavic affinity. He who tries to make them fight further for Hitler is inviting trouble.

Perhaps the king lost his life because he finally recognized the futility of trying to force his subjects to give further support to the Nazis. We don't know how he died, but there are all sorts of reports going the rounds and it may be time will disclose that he was assassinated on Nazi orders because he told Hitler in their recent conference that the game was up.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, August 31, 1923

Miss Ella Mae Schoeman and William W. Wierman were married at St. Matthew's Lutheran church by Rev. Charles F. Sheriff.

Lee Weber, George Nagle, Stuart Cramer, William Frankeberger, George Gushall and Wilber Mengert left on fishing trip to Sage Lake, Mich.

James M. Hammett, 53, died of injuries received when he was struck by automobile on South Main street.

Thelma Balyeat and Dorothy Wilkinson resigned as assistant librarians, to enter college.

Dr. W. A. Smith and family, 221 North Mulberry street, returned from motor trip through the east.

Al Swassick, city street employe, was knocked down and severely bruised by runaway horse on North Diamond street.

Mrs. Joseph Michaels and son Billy returned after extended visit in southern California.

Mrs. Susan M. Wheaton was preparing to go to Deleware to become supervisor of cottages at girls' industrial school.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The second most severe earthquake in U. S. history, was felt in 20 Southern and Central States, Aug. 31, 1886. This earthquake had its epicenter in South Carolina. It raised the whole town of Summerville, two feet. For miles through the marshy Carolina coastal plain, it opened out deep fissures in the earth from which jets of sulphurous mud spouted.

Timely Editorial

Your Insurance Policy.

All of the life insurance companies of the country have united in a camapign against inflation because it is a menace to every policy holder.

Inflation reduces the value of the dollar. If it gets out of control it will mean that every dollar invested in insurance is worth less when the policy becomes due. Insurance was wiped out in Germany by the inflation which followed the last war and it can happen here if it gets out of control.

A runaway rise in prices slashes the income of widows and orphans and those who live on annuities and reduces the dividends of policy holders still living. Every person who has an insurance policy has a vital stake in seeing that inflation is kept down.—Canton Repository.

Career Clique Starts Underhand Purge of Pro-Welles Diplomats

WASHINGTON—It is a carefully guarded secret inside the state department, but the forced ousting of Sumner Welles has been followed by a purge of other liberal diplomats, especially those who sided with Loyalist Spain against Franco or showed too much sympathy with Gen. De Gaulle.

They are being transferred, or resignations are being requested. Telephones have been tapped, and anyone who shows continued devotion to Sumner Welles or his liberal policies is warned by the clique which now has the ear of Secretary Hull.

Not since the days of Frank B. Kellogg, when the Career Clique deliberately framed one of its enemies, has there been such a reign of terror around the state department.

In Kellogg's day, the lobbying by which certain privileged diplomats were promoting themselves to favored positions was exposed by a certain consul inside the state department. Soon he found himself confronted by his enemies with a trumped-up sex crime, with faked affidavits, the publication of which would have ruined him. He was forced to resign.

Today, stories of divorce, domestic infelicity and sex rumors have been spread regarding certain progressive members of the state department whom it is sought to purge. Once these stories circulate to enough people through the gossip underground, the target of the gossip is told by his superiors that his usefulness is over and he must resign.

Never has the state department been more in need of drastic overhauling. One cabinet member, who has constant relations with the state department regarding the war, has told the president that it was almost impossible for him to do business with the department today.

All this comes at a time when we are hoping to win the peace after the war.

Synthetic Tire Tests.

BIG BILL JEFFERS is in Washington today, but his eyes are fixed on San Antonio, Texas, and Phoenix, Arizona.

In or near those cities the government is conducting road tests with the new synthetic tires produced under the Rubber Administrator's program. Areas in the southwest were selected because the roads are hot, and this provides conditions of the greatest strain. To increase the strain, the trucks are purposely overloaded.

First reports Jeffers received indicated that the synthetic tires wore out in about 6,000 miles. But due to constant changes in the formula and the manufacturing process, the latest synthetic truck tires stand up for 12,000 to 14,000 miles, compared with 18,000 for natural tires undergoing the same tests.

Note: These new truck tires, and all heavy duty tires, are only 70% synthetic, the rest being natural rubber. Synthetic rubber cannot stand up alone in heavy duty tires. Passenger tires will be almost entirely synthetic and will not stand it anywhere near as well.

Jeffers vs. Ickes.

THE SPEECH Interior Secretary Harold Ickes delivered before the New York Sales Executives club, in which he assailed dollar-a-year men for "bungling" the war effort, produced one repercussion in official circles that didn't get into print.

Rubber Administrator William Jeffers was so infuriated by Ickes' acid comments abouth the industrial tycoons who are running the War Production Board that he complained to the White House.

Jeffers phoned Gen. Edwin "Pa" Watson, the president's military secretary, and complained that Ickes was disrupting morale on the home front by heaping the blame for war production shortages and red tape on the shoulders of dollar-a-year men.

"If the president's order against government officials quarreling in public doesn't apply to Secretary Ickes, then the White House had better establish some new ground rules," Jeffers protested. Watson promised to refer the matter to the president. Apparently, he did so, because Jeffers later received a phone call from Bernie Baruch, a top White House counselor.

However, what Baruch had to say did little to soothe the rubber chief's outraged feelings.

"Bill, you'd better stay out of this," Baruch suggested diplomatically. "It's a little out of your line. Maybe you'd better let me handle these situations."

Jeffers promised to restrain himself in the future, so far as White House protests are concerned, but he has been doing some loud squawking behind the scenes to friends about Ickes' speech. He says it was an attempt to clear the administration's skirts for 1944 by fixing the blame for production delays on GOP dollar-a-year men.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—It isn't customary for anybody as high as a corps commander to get too close to the actual fighting but Lieut. Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley insists on keeping his command post up close, sometimes distressingly close, behind the front lines.

Recently he moved into a bivouac from which the artillery was still firing, with the result that he got a good working over by German dive bombers which were after our artillery.

One day we were riding in a jeep through hilly country and just as we passed a hidden big gun at the roadside it let off a blast right over our heads. It almost burst our ear drums and practically knocked us out of our seats. The general enjoyed telling for days how we almost got our heads blown off by our own gun.

Another day we were eating lunch at the command post of the First Infantry Division, then commanded by Maj. Gen. Terry Allen. It was in a big, old building close to the front and Gen. Allen had a whole battery of his big guns right alongside the building. They blasted away throughout lunch, and the noise was deafening.

They were so close that at every volley the building would shake, the table and dishes jiggle, and the glassless window frames would rattle, and you could feel the blast sweep through the room.

After a little of this Gen. Bradley turned to Gen. Allen and said, "Terry, could you arrange to have those guns shoot over the building instead of through it?"

* * *

GEN. BRADLEY has a separate mess at his own command post in a tent a few feet away from the regular mess. He has this separate mess because at almost every meal there are some visiting American or British generals there for discussions and they need privacy and quiet while they eat. His table seats seven and at each meal Gen. Bradley has one junior member of his staff in as a guest.

Generals as well as privates are human and Gen. Bradley himself had one session with that famous army occupational disease known as the "G. I.'s"—or army diarrhea.

On duty the general is always spoken to as "General" or "Sir" by other officers. But I noticed that informally, such as at dinner, all the general officers call him "Brad"

* * *

I RODE and I sat around with Gen. Bradley for three days, and at times I was so engulfed in stars I thought I must be a comet. From now on a mere colonel will have to do a couple of somersaults to get me to look at him.

As a result of all this hobnobbing with the high and mighty, I have taken considerable kidding from the other correspondents. When I returned to our camp the other boys said, "Uh, huh, Pyle, the doughboy's friend. Wait till all the mothers of privates hear you've started consorting with generals."

Everytime I pass Hal Boyle, of the Associated Press, he says out of the corner of his mouth so I can hear it, "There goes that social climbing columnist."

And Chris Cunningham of the United Press, conjectures, that if this keeps up, in a few weeks I'll be sitting around with the correspondents making such remarks as, "Well, I told Omar that his battle plan wouldn't work, but he insisted on trying it out anyhow."

And another one said, "We passed you on the road today and there you were riding with the big general, and bareheaded as usual when you know it's against the rules."

So I said, "Well, when I went with the General, I told him I couldn't find my leggin's, and didn't like to wear a steel helmet, and was it all right? He said, 'Okay.'"

And then Chris chimed in and said, "That's the way. There you go, taking advantage of the power of the press. You ought to be ashamed."

So we have had a lot of fun about my sad tumble from a yearlong kinship with the common soldier down to the depths of associating with a general. But it was fine while it lasted and if I must associate with generals I know I picked a pretty good one.

But the ride is over and tomorrow I'll go back to sleeping under some strange tree again.

It Says Here:

THE BUDGET bureau has ordered that letterheads for government departments be printed without the names of officials in order to reduce waste.

* * *

It looks like everybody except the southern Democrats is being hired and fired so rapidly the stationery couldn't be ordered and delivered fast enough to keep it up to date.

* * *

The budget men said their order would reduce obsolescence. That might be true of the letterheads, but about the only way for an official to keep from becoming obsolete in Washington between now and November 1944 is to be able to deliver more votes than the next guy.

Dave Boone Says:

If any man ever rated decorations it's Captain Eddie Ellsberg, the famous deep-sea diver who got the Legion of Merit medal the other day. He got it "for doing the impossible," and that exactly describes what he has been doing for years.

* * *

He thinks no more of being asked to raise a mess of sunken ships under incredible conditions than the average man thinks of being asked to retrieve a cake of soap from the tub. He has done a lot of amazing stunts, but it came close to tops when he went to an African port and, among other things, raised a huge sunken and dynamited drydock in nine days. He cleared the harbor of Massawa in East Africa of wreckage everybody said couldn't be cleared in years.

* * *

If he hadn't been busy I think Eddie could have raised the Normandie over a week-end if he'd been given forty-eight hours' rest and a good, strong cup of coffee.

* * *

Well, Mrs. Roosevelt has made a 6,500-mile trip to the Pacific front just in time to beat Mr. Eastman's request that nobody travel unnecessarily over Labor day.

* * *

I understand she came in on a wing and a typewriter.

Loss of Welles Severe Blow To Efficiency of State Department

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON— The loss of Sumner Welles to the state department is a terrific blow to the efficiency of that department. For the last ten years it has been generally recognized that Welles possessed one of the clearest, coldest brains in the entire administration. Mentally he towered over the other governmental factotums like a giant among pigmies.

The blow is the greater because it had been assumed for years that Welles would last as long as Roosevelt did. There is nothing new about the stories of bad feeling between Welles and his chief, Cordell Hull. Everyone in Washington has known about them ever since Welles came back into the department. Everyone knew that Welles wanted Hull's job, and there were plenty who thought he was smart enough to be able to get it.

But those who so reckoned figured without Cordell Hull. When they finally, after the first few years, began to realize Hull's strength with Roosevelt, then the whispers died away. Everyone knew that Welles' ambition was still there. Everyone including Hull.

But the passage of time indicated that Hull was big enough to forget this ambition on the part of his junior, as so many big men have overlooked the obvious ambition of their first lieutenant, if politics, in business, in war, in every field of human endeavor.

* * *

THE terrible part of it is that Hull HAD overlooked it. Knowing all about it, he was not in the least afraid of anything Welles might be able to do. Hull knew his own strength.

What finally upset the applecart was were a few newspaper men, who simply kept pounding the story of the internal dissension in the state department until it finally go under Hull's skin.

Everything that happened that these newspaper men, one of them also a broadcaster, did not like they blamed on this friction between Hull and Welles. Actually none of the things criticised were due to this friction. Actually all of them would have happened, precisely the same, had Hull been out and Welles the secretary, or had Welles been out, or had any man you can think of been secretary.

This is so because ALL of the things recently criticised in the state department have been directed, not by anyone in the White House. For instance, General Charles de Gaulle. This fighting French leader was unfortunate enough to rub President Roosevelt decidedly the wrong way when the president was at Casablanca.

This is not a secret. Everyone in Washington who has been at any pains to find out what has been going on has known it for some time.

Certainly the newspaper men who kept talking about the "feud" in the state department knew it. Yet, they kept blaming the failure of this government to recognize the French committee on the state department "feud."

One wonders if these newspaper men, who breathed on this fire until it grew so hot that Hull demanded the ousting of Welles, are pleased with Breckinridge Long in Welles' place. Already there is criticism from the left wing commentators that Long was a strong admirer of Mussolini when he was ambassador to Italy.

Which is also absurd. It is obvious that Long rattles around in Welles' shoes, but it has always been good diplomatic policy for an ambassador to create the impression that he thought the head of the state to which he was accredited was quite a fellow!

NATALIE KLOTZ WEDS WILLIAM G. BATCHELOR

Bridegroom's Uncle Reads Service In Westminster Presbyterian Church of Key West, Fla.; Couple to Make Home In Key West.

MR. AND MRS. J. H. CHAPMAN of Mt. Gilead are announcing the marriage of Mrs. Chapman's daughter, Natalie Lois Klotz, to William G. Batchelor, sound school instructor and petty officer second class, of the U. S. Navy, stationed at Key West, Fla.

The bride is a former resident of this city, having lived at 427 Henry street, and been employed at the Empire Steel and Tin Plate company.

The double ring ceremony took place in the Westminster Presbyterian church of Key West on Tuesday, Aug. 24, at 10 a. m. Rev. A. R. Batchelor, uncle of the bridegroom and pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Orlando, Fla., officiated.

Attending the couple were John McMillan and Miss Vivian Tuttle.

The bride wore an afternoon two-piece frock of white waffle pique, with matching accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of red roses.

Miss Tuttle was attired in a dress of copenhagen blue crepe with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of red roses.

Mr. Batchelor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Batchelor of Mt. Gilead. He graduated from Mt. Gilead high school and completed his sophomore year at Muskingum college before enlisting with the U. S. Navy.

The bride is a graduate af Mt. Gilead high school. She also attended Mansfield Business college and for the past two years has been employed as bookkeeper in the office of the Morrow county Rural Electric Administration in Mt Gilead.

Mr and Mrs. Batchelor will be at home at 1219 Pear street, in Key West.

Club Members Entertain At Farewell Party

Friendly Eight club members entertained last evening with a farewell party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kemp Oswalt, Paxford road, who are moving to Los Angeles, Calif.

The club held a steak fry at Middle park. Late in the evening, they went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lindegger, Bowland road, where pinochle was in session at four tables.

Prizes were won by Mrs. Robert Cook and A. L. Fisher. Winners presented their prizes to the guests of honor. They also received gifts from the club.

The next regular meeting of the club will be held Oct. 6 at the home of Mrs. Albert Cook, Bennet street.

Two Committees Have Meetings At Moose Home

Two committees of the Moose Women, Mansfield chapter No. 47, met last evening at the Moose home. The committees were Moose Haven and the executive committee.

The Moose Haven's business meeting was in charge of Mrs. Effie Keltner. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Henry Metzgar and Mrs. Ernest Thomas.

Cards were played and prizes awarded to Mrs. Keltner and Mrs. Ernest Calver. Mrs. Bessie Ricks, senior regent, was a guest. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

Details of the next meeting will be announced at a later date.

Thirteen members attended the executive committee. Mrs A K Ricks was in charge of the business meeting. The Oct. 4 meeting will be held at the Moose home.

Degree Team Has Outdoor Meeting

The degree team of the Pocahontas lodge met at the home of Mrs. Ray Underwood, 595 South Main street, Monday evening for an outdoor supper at 6:30.

Following the supper, a short business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Effie Keltner, acting president.

Bunco and 500 were the evening's diversion. The next meeting will be held Oct 4 at the home of Mrs. Mary Hill Hedges street.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

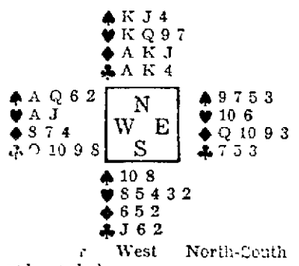
"The Authority on Authorities"

USE AN ENTRY RIGHTLY

How often we see declarers waste a valuable entry, instead of employing it to some useful purpose. This is especially true when one of the two holdings, the dummy or closed hand, has no entries to spare. In such cases, if there is some suit which can be led just as well from one hand as the other, it usually should come from the hand with plenty of entries. Some other suit or suits, which must be led in a particular direction when the lead is in the desired place, should be selected in the right spot.



(Dealer, West. North-South vulnerable.)

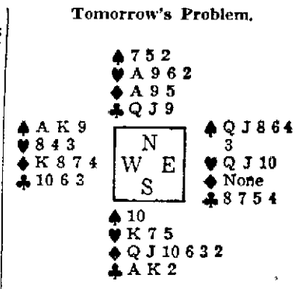
West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Dbl	2 ♠	Pass
Pass	Dbl	Pass	3 ♥
Pass	4 ♥

Offhand, you would say, after study of all four hands, that the declarer could not possibly fail to make his contract on this deal, unless he was trying to get beaten. Most especially you would consider his defeat a virtual impossibility if he received the fortunate lead of a club. Yet that is exactly what occurred and his errors were only of the kind you see rather frequently among average players.

Taking the first trick with the club J, he immediately led the heart 2, playing the dummy's 7 after West put on the A. Little did he realize that he had made two mistakes on one trick, and had in one stroke caused defeat of his contract. West returned the diamond 8, which the Q won, and the club 7 came back to the K. No matter what South did now, he could not get into his own hand for a spade lead, so had to drop two tricks in that suit.

If South, after winning the first trick, had led the spade 10 and later, when hearts were led, had preserved the 7 in the North hand to make the 8 an entry into South, for a second spade lead, he could have made not only his contract, but an extra trick, as he could have discarded his own losing diamond on a spade.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer, South. East-West vulnerable.)

What rare and beautiful play must South make on this deal to score 5-Diamonds after West leads the spade K and A?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"You what?" my father and I exclaimed in unison.

Then my father came up to Ronald, and taking his clinging hands from my shoulders, put him into a chair.

"Get your breath, lad," he said indulgently as though speaking to an excited child, "and then tell us all about this."

"You don't believe me! Ronald's voice rose hysterically 'I can see you don't! But it's true, I tell you! I was as near to her as I am to you, and do you think I wouldn't know her no matter how she was disguised?"

Ronald Despondent.

He buried his face in his hands, and across his bowed head my father's eyes mirrored the compassion which was in mine for the overwrought boy. Evidently the Chief believed Ronald was suffering from an hallucination.

But I was not so sure, although I knew that intuition, no reason was behind my impression that the boy might be speaking the truth.

My father made a little dismayed gesture which told me he wished me to deal with Ronald and I leaned forward and put my hand on his arm.

"Dear boy," I said coaxingly "we have not said we don't believe you. We are simply so shocked and astounded by what you have told us that we do not know what to think. Won't you pull yourself together, and tell us just where and how you saw the girl you believed to be Marion?"

He took his face from his hands and looked at me with such tragic suffering in his eyes that my throat muscles contracted with pity. Then, squaring his shoulders as though lifting the weight of a heavy burden, he began to speak slowly but without hysteria.

"I was walking down Fifth Avenue just before I telephoned you," he said. "I had several errands to do, and for a wonder I wasn't even thinking about Mario for the minute, although I guess you know she isn't out of my thoughts very many minutes of the day."

"Yes, indeed we know, Ronald," I said softly, and he hurried on.

"The red lights went on, and everything stopped. I was on the west side of the avenue, going south, and a coupe with a man and a woman in it, were going south when the light changed. They stopped so near me that I could have put out my hand and touched the woman who was on the right side of the car. I didn't pay any attention to her, except to see that she had white hair and dark sun glasses, and then I heard her give a little choking sound, and I looked at her.

"The man didn't hear her, evidently. He was watching traffic, and quick as lightning she put her finger to her lips, while with the other hand she lowered the sun glasses so that I could see her eyes."

"Marion?" my father and I exclaimed together.

Retorts Impatiently.

"Of course!" Ronald retorted impatiently. "Do you think I wouldn't know her eyes anywhere?"

"Then what happened?" I asked breathlessly.

"She put her sun glasses back as quickly as she had lowered them, but the man saw her hand at them and he barked at her. 'I thought I told you to leave those alone!' Then the lights changed, and he started his car forward before I could make up my mind what to do especially as she had put her finger on her lips. I wanted to snatch her bodily out of the seat, but I didn't know what trouble I might be bringing on her.

"Besides, I didn't know—I've heard stories—I didn't know but perhaps her ankles were chained to the car and I'd be hurting her terribly if he should be starting the car."

His eyes were filled with horror, and I prodded him gently.

"What did you do, Ronald?"

"I hurried along the sidewalk as fast as I could without actually running. I was afraid the man would see me in his mirror. And I kept my eyes open for a taxi, but there wasn't one in sight anywhere. Then there came a break in the traffic and he speeded up the car and whipped around a corner, and when I got to that corner they—they weren't anywhere in sight!"

His voice trailed away into a sigh that was almost a groan, and then it rose again in a despairing cry.

"And so I lost her, when she was almost in my arms—in safety. Yet what could I have done?"

He looked wildly from my father to me.

"Tell me where I failed!" he pleaded.

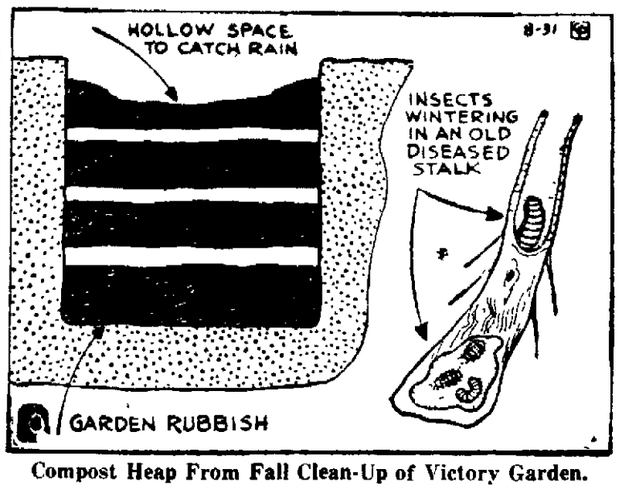
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Compost Heap From Fall Clean-Up of Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press.

OUT OF THE fall clean-up of the Victory garden should come a compost heap or pit, if you do not already have one. It will not only serve to dispose of the debris from the garden, but will prove beneficial as a soil builder when next season's gardening gets under way.

The construction of a compost pit is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Dig it three feet by four feet and three feet deep Pile the compost with a hollow in the center so as to form a basin to hold the rain, since standing water is helpful to decomposition The compost pit, of course, should be located in an out-of-the-way corner of the Victory garden

Leaves, turf, grass clippings, vegetable matter, manure and straw can go into the compost pit Sprinkle lime, bone meal, wood ashes or some other fertilizer over the compost from time to time or in layers, as illustrated Turning the pile from time to time lets in air and thus aids decomposition

Be careful not to throw any diseased or insect-infested plant material, as illustrated, into the compost pit, since it offers excellent breeding grounds.

COUPLE MARRIED

SHELBY — Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Florence Laubie of William Fewell, both of Shelby, which took place Saturday at the St Mary's rectory here. Rev M A McFadden officiated Miss Helen Wittenbreer and John Rudd of this city were the attendants

PLENTY OF WORK

PULLMAN, Wash.—(INS)—There are 620 different occupations in the army, according to Captain E. E. Wilson of the war department's civilian pre-induction training branch at San Francisco.

Of the total, 290 occupations have counterparts in civilian life, Capt. Wilson said. He spoke at an education conference at Washington State college.

LEGIONNAIRE IS 15

BRATTLEBORO, Vt.—(U.P.)—The Brattleboro Post of the American Legion claims the youngest legionnaire in Vermont. He's Calvin Coolidge Schultz, 15, who was recently discharged from the army. Schultz served seven months before his age was discovered.

HE GOT RIDE!

SEATTLE—(INS)—Francis G. Vaara, 19-year-old draft evader, asked two men for a ride in their car. He told them who he was and where he was going. They were the FBI agents detailed to apprehend him.
